No "tubs of fun" on the town common.

The Carriage House Nursery School's Family Fun Day (this Saturday, June 7 from noon to 4 p.m.) has been moved from its original location on the common to the field in back of the Paul Pratt Memorial Library (35 Ripley Road).

The move comes two weeks after the Board of Selectmen approved the event, despite concerns over the mechanical "tubs of fun" ride. Selectmen said at the time that they believed the ride was omitted from the original event application (the event was scheduled for May 17 but canceled due to rain).

Selectmen also questioned whether carnivals and such events were appropriate for the town common, which is on the National Register of Historic Places and also in the middle of a Local Historic District. Selectmen chair Diane Kennedy suggested that the board hold a larger conversation on the types of events that should be allowed on the common.

This issue may be part of the reason for the location change, although nursery school director Lynn Fahie said in an email that it's because a wedding is scheduled for the same day at First Parish, and there could be "potential for some overlap" with the two events.

"First Parish wanted to ensure that the Family Fun Day will be a wonderful event for the children and the community, and that the bride, groom and their guests enjoy their special day as well," Fahie explained in the email.

During the Tuesday, June 3 meeting, selectmen approved the location change unanimously (5-0) with little discussion. Selectman Kevin McCarthy, however, raised

YOGA

Breathing new life into yoga center

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

Tucked at the end of a strip mall, behind Mary Lou's Coffee and Cohasset House of Pizza, is an unexpected oasis.

The Cohasset Yoga Center has been a peaceful place for local yogis to relax, reflect, and practice their asanas for over 20 years.

Changes are afoot at the center, with longtime owner Mary Norton exiting and new owner and yoga instructor Catherine O'Callaghan taking the helm, introducing new classes and unveiling a revamped website.

When Norton opened the center two decades ago, it was quite the novelty, according to O'Callaghan. "There were no other studios anywhere" in the area.

"I feel it needs to be given new life," O'Callaghan said, adding that she wants to "keep the torch going" after Norton's departure. "She was here this entire duration... It was only with her consent that I took it over."

While making the transition from old ownership to new, O'Callaghan plans to continue the proud tradition of being the "center" for yoga in Cohasset. The new owner said that she respects the fact the center is the "oldest and most reputable" yoga studio in town.

But the yoga tradition stretches back even further in Cohasset, said O'Callaghan.

"I've heard that yoga is seeped into Cohasset's history," the yogi said, adding that she believes the Boston area is the first place yoga came to the U.S.

Regardless of how it all began, O'Callaghan said that, simply, the Cohasset Yoga Center "is the place for

What: It's that time! Everything is coming together well for the annual Cohasset Triathlon. The Streamline Events crew behind the annual race regularly hears that the Cohasset Tri has the best volunteers, and agrees 100 percent. The success of the Tri is because of individuals, like you, who help make the event run so smoothly. It is no surprise that the Cohasset Triathlon has the fastest sell-out of any sprint distance race in the U.S.

Helping out: Please email Christian Cunnie at christian@streamlineevents.com if you are interested in helping on race day Sunday, June 29. There is also help needed for setting up and with registration on Saturday, June 28. Please email the following: your name, preferred email address, and cell phone number.

Spread the word: Also, please help spread the word to a friend or two; as far as volunteers go, the more, the merrier! Each volunteer will receive an event staff t-shirt, food, refreshments, and the satisfaction of taking part in an incredible community event. Streamline Events will also sign any documentation for students volunteering for community service hours.

For more: For more on Streamline Events and the upcoming Cohasset Triathlon, visit www.streamlineevents.com, www.cohassettri.com, or call 781-626-3942.

Jason McCabe & Jim Willis

Name: Jason Daniel McCabe and Jim Willis.

Occupation: Teacher (both).

Best day of your life: "It's difficult to pick just one. Conception and birth were nice; they really gave me my start. But my wedding day and the days on which my children were born are up there as well" (Jason). "Tie – my wedding day, and the day I brought my five-week-old son home for the first time (game 7 of the '04 ALCS is close, though)" (Jim).

Best vacation: "I love the annual Eastham, Mass. family vacation, but my honeymoon on the Mayan Riviera and backpacking through Europe with my wife and brothers was amazing. The Cliffs of Moher and Oian sunsets in Santorini deserve honorable mention" (Jason). "Edinburgh, Scotland" (Jim).

Favorite season: "I love the variety we have in New England, but I'm going to go with autumn, what with the crispness and chromatic display. I'm also biased, because 'autumnal' is one of my favorite words. Query: 'How are you feeling?' Reply: 'Autumnal.' Internal response: 'Oh, he's deep'" (Jason). Fall (Jim).

Favorite holiday: "Because I cannot possibly decide between Boxing Day and Flag Day, I shall have to go with Christmas. Commercialism aside, the focus on family, charity, and hope restore my faith in God and humanity" (Jason). "Christmas" (Jim).

Favorite junk food, meal or dessert: "Must I choose? Very well: Doritos, lasagna, and Oreos. If I must pick a genre, I choose pub food" (Jason). "A good highlander breakfast" (Jim).

Best book: "The Brothers Karamazov by Fyodor Dostoevsky. The first time I picked it up, I got through 300 pages and didn't understand a thing. I then realized that I was reading it in the original Russian. When I switched to English, it changed my life. A central theme: humble love conquers all" (Jason). "The Sicilian by Mario Puzo" (Jim).

Best movie or actor: "That's an interesting question. Do you prefer peanut butter or ice skating? Today, my favorite film is 'The Royal Tennenbaums,' but it's usually 'Magnolia,' not to be confused with 'Steel Magnolias.' My favorite actor is Daniel Day Lewis. For versatility, he takes the custard. And I love custard" (Jason). "Anything James Bond or Star Wars" (Jim).

Best TV show: "I could not have answered this until this year. 'True Detective?' is the greatest show ever written. Indisputable fact. Aesthetics are usually subjective. Not so in this case. The casting is phenomenal, the narrative and characters captivating, and the writer is doing things with biblical allusions that blow my mind. Final episode: tohu and bohu! 'Nuff said" (Jason). "Doctor Who" (Jim).

Best music, group or artist: "I'm quite partial to anything folk/Americana in terms of genre. That category aside, for lyricism I love Ben Folds and Aaron McCabe (my brother), for emotional range I love Rufus Wainwright, and for transcendence I love Sigur Ros" (Jason). "Tom Waits and Bruce Springsteen" (Jim).

Pet peeve: "The mastication of bananas. A film industry that can only interpret classical literature through a post-modern lens" (Jason). "None, really - I'm remarkably tolerant" (Jim).

Most embarrassing moment: "The first time I visited my wife's family, when she was just my girlfriend, her parents were showing me photo albums of their family in Italy. One uncle who was very diminutive in stature they told me was [named] Polio. I clarified, 'His name is Polio.' 'Yes,' they replied. Later that weekend, wanting to impress the family with my attentiveness, his picture came up. 'It's Uncle Polio!' I exclaimed. They looked at me in horror. 'He has polio,' my mother-in-law-to-be intoned. 'His name is Franco.' Worst misunderstanding ever" (Jason).

Fun fact: "I'm a dancing fiend, but only at weddings. I'm also a black belt – also, only at weddings..." (Jim).

Person you would most like to meet: "Jesus. If that couldn't be arranged, Pope Francis. I'm not Catholic, but if he keeps it up, I might have to become one. A close third would be Queen Elizabeth I" (Jason). "Alive, the Dalai Lama; dead, Albert Einstein" (Jim).

Goal: "To publish. I have self-published a children's book on Amazon; type in 'kite' and 'McCabe.' But I wish to publish a novel one day with a real publishing company. But whether or not that happens, I wish to be thought of as a man who loved everyone he met" (Jason). "I'm having a lot of fun in life, and I suppose I'd like that to continue" (Jim).

Biggest worry: "The death of my loved ones in a purely material universe. A distant second is the helium shortage. A close third is a pepperoni shortage" (Jason). "That I might become one of those people who worry too much." (Jim).

Best part of Cohasset: "The students, of course" (Jason). "I've found Cohasset to be, by and large, a very laidback and pleasant community – but when stuff needs to get done, people step up in a big way. Oh – and it's got AMAZING teachers" (Jim).

Tobacco regs at June meeting

The Board of Health plans to discuss tobacco regulations at their June 10 meeting. They are considering regulations including a possible pharmacy sale ban and raising the legal purchasing age from 18 to 21, although in previous discussions the board did not seem to be leaning toward bumping the age up.

Alleged credit card fraud leads to larceny charge

By Mary Ford
mford@wickedlocal.com

Police are summonsing to Quincy District Court a 29-year-old Braintree woman and former caregiver to an 87-year-old Cohasset man, on larceny charges following an investigation into a complaint by the man's 56-year-old daughter, who lives in Arlington.

The matter was brought to their attention on Saturday (May 31) by the man's daughter, who handles his finances and found something was askew.

Police said the caregiver is believed to have used the man's credit card to purchase about $3,000 in gift cards for herself at Walgreen's.

Police notified her employer and she has been placed on administrative leave.

Police have summonsed Justine J. Lapaglia, 29, of 234 Quincy Ave., Braintree, to court to face the charges of credit card fraud, larceny over $250, and identity theft.

Tools stolen

The 30-year-old owner of a construction company working at 100 Pond Street went to the police station on Monday morning (May 26) to report that a Bosch table saw and a Bosch chop saw were taken from the construction site overnight. The tools had been secured in an unlocked shed, police said.

Single car MVA

At 5:37 p.m. on Monday (May 26), police responded to a single-car accident on Jerusalem Road near Black Rock Beach. Police said a 2003 Ford Mustang convertible, operated by a 19-year-old Hingham man, was headed north on Forest Avenue toward the water, when the driver failed to properly negotiate the turn on Atlantic Avenue in Hull and hit the rock wall by the beach.

The Mustang was towed; there were no injuries. The 19-year-old was cited for speeding and marked lanes violation, police said.

Copper wire

Police are investigating the theft of a significant amount of copper wire from a home under construction on Border Street. A 58-year-old contractor reported the missing wire that had disappeared sometime over the long Memorial Day weekend. Police did not have a value of the stolen wire.

Two-car MVC

Police responded to a two-vehicle crash at the lights at Chief Justice Cushing Highway (Route 3A) and Beechwood Street on Tuesday (May 27) around 3:52 p.m.

A 2002 Jeep SUV, operated by a 19-year-old Scituate woman, was headed north when she attempted to make a left onto Beechwood Street (toward the ballpark). She pulled in front of a 2005 Chevrolet Silverado pickup truck that was traveling south on 3A through the light.

Both vehicles were towed; there were no injuries. The operator of the Jeep was cited for failure to yield to oncoming traffic, police said.

Coyote

Police were unable to locate a mangy-looking, strange-acting coyote that was reported in a puddle on Jerusalem Road around 12:38 p.m. on Wednesday (May 28). The animal had apparently wandered off before police arrived. However, police urge residents to call 9-1-1 if they see a strange-acting, wild animal like a coyote. Rabies is present in Cohasset and frequent carriers are coyotes, bats, raccoons, skunks and foxes.

Car keyed

A 47-year-old man went to police headquarters on Wednesday (May 28) to report that his 2014 Jeep SUV had been keyed on the driver's side door while he was parked on Pleasant Street on May 19.

Domestic

On Wednesday evening (May 28), police responded to a call from a Cohasset grandfather who reported that his son's estranged wife had arrived in an intoxicated state with the two young grandchildren. The grandfather took the keys but the children's mother then left on foot with the two kids, police said.

Police found the woman, who is 34, and notified the state Department of Children and Families. DCF, which had dealt with the family before, found the mother to be unfit and turned the children over to their father. Her parents picked her up, police said.

Condo cats

Two neighbors in a local condo complex are feuding over whether the complex allows cats, police said. One of the two women went to the police station on Thursday (May 29) to say she had an issue with her neighbor. The reporting party does not believe cats are allowed. There had been several verbal arguments in the parking lot between the two women over the issue. Police said it is a civil matter that should be resolved by civil attorneys after review of the condominium documents. However the reporting party was advised that she could obtain a harassment prevention order if the altercations continue. A harassment prevention order requires three documented incidents of harassment, police said.

Armored car

The female operator of an armored vehicle notified police on Friday morning (May 30) after a silver-colored Lincoln Town Car appeared to have followed the armored vehicle from the Rotary in Hingham to Shaw's Plaza. Once at the plaza, the Lincoln backed into a parking space in the corner of the parking lot.

Police arrived and found the town car. It turned out to be completely benign and a coincidence that the woman driving the town car had the same destination as the armored vehicle.

Two-car MVC

Police responded to a two-car crash by Dunkin Donuts on King Street (Route 3A) at 1:56 p.m. on Sunday (June 1). A 2005 Toyota Sienna, operated by a 45-year-old Cohasset woman, had pulled out of Dunkin Donuts and was attempting to go across 3A into the Avalon complex when the Sienna collided with a 2005 Jeep Grand Cherokee. The Jeep, operated by a 61-year-old Cohasset woman, was coming out of the Avalon complex and attempting to turn left onto 3A.

The two vehicles collided in the middle of the road, police said. Both were towed; there were no injuries. The operator of the Jeep was cited for failure to yield.

Harassment

A 52-year-old Braintree man, who used to work in Cohasset, went to the police station on Sunday evening (June 1) after finding his 2013 BMW covered with dozens of notes when he come out of a local function here in town.

The 46-year-old Cohasset man, who was responsible for the notes, then confronted the Braintree man about an incident that had occurred several years ago.

The Cohasset man then followed the Braintree man, who drove to the police station, where he reported that he felt threatened by the other man.

Police are summonsing the Cohasset man to Quincy District Court on the charge of criminal harassment.

CERT training class to begin in July

All classes will be led by FEMA certified CERT trainers, at the Emergency Operations Center, in the basement of Deer Hill School.

Community Emergency Response Team training is designed to prepare people to help themselves, their family, and neighbors in the event of a catastrophic disaster. Because emergency services personnel will not be able to help everyone immediately, people can make a difference by using CERT training to save lives and protect property.

Cohasset CERT is planning the basic training class for 2014, beginning in July. This training is offered free of charge to residents. All classes will be led by FEMA certified CERT trainers, at the Emergency Operations Center, in the basement of Deer Hill School, 208 Sohier St.

Certification includes nine evenings of classes and a Saturday morning drill. Attendees will also receive the supplies/materials needed for CERT deployments. Additional optional instruction is available in CPR, MEMA and town communications, disaster sheltering and warming center.

For more information or to sign-up, contact the Cohasset CERT manager at rich.hynes@hotmail.com or call 508-395-3308/781-383-0944.

Should Cohasset go green?

Cohasset is exploring ways to become a "Green Community."

Town Manager Chris Senior reported to the Board of Selectmen Tuesday that he met with the regional coordinator for the state's Green Communities initiative, which involves a five-part checklist. If the town completes the five items, it can be certified as a Green Community.

Becoming a green community, said Senior, leads to grant opportunities for the town.

Selectman Karen Quigley noted that Cohasset has taken steps to do this in the past, "but it never happened." She added that the town's Alternative Energy Committee has been working on this, and the selectmen "should dovetail with their efforts."

RED LION INN:

Manager appointment delayed

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

A hearing for the Red Lion Inn to change the manager has been continued to the next Board of Selectmen's meeting – Tuesday, June 17 at 7:10 p.m.

The inn's attorney, Charles Humphreys, asked for a continuance, stating that the inn has some "procedural issues" to clean up first. Because there has been a recent change in managers, the inn must also document a change in the officers and/or directors.

The inn recently hired a new general manager, Heinrich Lutjens of Belmont, Mass. Lutjens started working at the inn on Monday, May 12, a week after former manager John Cowden, who was hired in March, vacated the position.

Lutjens, who has 20 years' experience working as general manager of the Harvard Faculty Club, attended the selectmen meeting Tuesday along with Humphreys, and was introduced to the board.

In addition to a change in management, the inn also replaced the corporate officers, director and treasurer, said Humphreys. All of these changes must undergo approval by the state's Alcoholic Beverages Control Commission (ABCC). The inn must also obtain a certificate of good standing. This will be filed with the town, but it could take several more days, the attorney explained.

Selectmen chair Diane Kennedy said that the board would need the documents by Friday, June 13 in order to have them in the selectmen's packets for the June 17 meeting. Town Manager Chris Senior said the sooner the documentation is received, the better.

Humphreys said the paperwork would be filed the minute the inn receives the certificate of good standing. Kennedy said she didn't anticipate a problem in receiving all of the required paperwork. "It's just that rubber stamping," she said.

Selectman Steve Gaumer had questions on how the change in officers/directors works, and wondered where the inn's owner, Gerd Ordelheide, stood in the business's corporate structure. Humphreys replied that Ordelheide is the real estate owner only, and is not a director, manager or corporate officer.

The inn's liquor license must be held by a U.S. citizen, Humphreys explained (Ordelheide owns a home in Europe).

While Kennedy cautioned that the discussion should not trail "too far down that road," Humphreys clarified, "A distinction must be made."

The selectmen voted unanimously to continue the hearing to June 17 at 7:10 p.m.

Billing issue

The manager position isn't the only one that has had a high turnover at the inn; a revolving door of bookkeepers at the inn has meant bills being left unpaid.

The police department reported recently that the Red Lion Inn owes the town nearly $12,000 in police detail wages for officers assigned to weddings and similar events.

Acting Police Chief William Quigley said in an email to the Town Manager's office that collecting the funds has been a challenge due to the turnover in bookkeeping over the past year.

Kennedy said Tuesday that the inn has paid back some of the money owed to the town, however the matter still needs to be "cleared up."

NEWS UPDATE

Majority of board approves letter objecting to cartoon

But not without controversy among the selectmen

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

"Before being disturbed by a cartoon, we might want to review the way we have behaved."
Selectman Steve Gaumer

Selectmen are having their say on a Cohasset Mariner post-election cartoon, but tensions remain high among a few board members who are split on the subject.

The board voted Tuesday to approve a letter drafted by selectmen chair Diane Kennedy expressing the board's disapproval over a cartoon from the May 16 edition, which was based on the prior week's lead story and editorial on "bullet voting." The story and editorial described what bullet voting is – the practice of voting for only one candidate when there is more than one option – and whether it was being used as a campaign tactic in the Town Election.

In an attempt to avoid restricting the paper's rights to free speech under the First Amendment, the letter says that the board wishes to "register our displeasure" with the cartoon.

"While we recognize and appreciate the paper's fundamental right to print the cartoon and engage in political satire, we were taken aback by the depiction of violence and the characters' use of guns," the letter states. "In today's society, such imagery is unsettling and does not accurately reflect the values of our community."

The "bullet vote" cartoon featured Kennedy as a gun-toting Annie Oakley-like character with Kevin McCarthy as a John Wayne-like character having just vanquished opponent Fred Koed in the Wild West. Koed lost the election to Kennedy and McCarthy.

Kennedy signed the letter "members of the Cohasset Board of Selectmen" but noted that they could opt to sign the letter as individuals.

Selectman Martha Gjesteby motioned to approve the letter, saying she agreed that while the press has a right to free speech, she also has a problem with the cartoon's imagery.

Gaumer said he planned to abstain from voting and while he "didn't find it funny," he hadn't heard complaints.

"Was it tasteful? I don't know," said Gaumer. "I heard absolutely no one say 'boo' to me about it."

Lecturing the press is hypocritical of politicians, Gaumer added. "Before being disturbed by a cartoon, we might want to review the way we have behaved," he said, adding that if readers were angry over the image, it would be reflected in the paper's circulation. "If we believe we speak for the community, the paper will fold and will not exist any more except as an online blog."

The selectman said that he thinks the board "should be more concerned spending the town's precious time" working "on the town's business rather than wagging our fingers at a newspaper."

"I think it's time we pulled up our big boy and big girl pants," Gaumer added.

Selectman Karen Quigley countered that both Gaumer and the Mariner were "missing the point." She alleged that the Mariner's editor "chose to misrepresent" Quigley's statements from the May 20 meeting in the paper's front-page story about the board's reaction to the cartoon indicating that she was trying to "restrict the Mariner's right to free speech."

Quigley said that she is merely trying to uphold the principles of the Anti-Defamation League's "no place for hate community," showing a picture she took of a sign with this message outside of Town Hall. She added that the board should try to combat bullying and hatred, and "create and maintain a positive climate," adding that was the platform she ran on in last year's election.

Kennedy said that perhaps the board should invite the ADL in to speak in the future. "It's something we can do when we reaffirm the [selectmen's] Code of Ethics," she suggested.

Kennedy then called for a vote on the letter. Gjesteby made another motion to approve it, which Quigley seconded. The board voted 4-0 with Gaumer abstaining; he said afterward that he didn't want to "dignify the letter" with a vote.

Kennedy said that she had heard from a number of folks in the community on this matter, some who were glad the board spoke up and others who, like Gaumer, thought they needed to "put on their big boy and big girl pants."

The selectmen chair reiterated that with the letter, the board is not "trying to derail anybody's rights; it's just to make a statement."

While the matter appeared to be resolved, tensions were still high at the end of the meeting. After the meeting adjourned, Gaumer and Quigley appeared to have a confrontation. Quigley said something to Gaumer that was inaudible to the audience and then stormed off.

By way of background, Quigley first raised the cartoon issue during the selectmen comment portion of the board's May 20 meeting, saying she was offended by the illustration of guns. She asked the board to write a letter to GateHouse Media, which owns the Mariner stating this would not be tolerated within "our community, that this is not the example we want to set; that it is not what we want the community to be portrayed as."

Swimming lessons

The Cohasset Swim Center is getting ready to splash into the Summer of 2014. Register for your membership and swim lessons online at: cohassetswimcenter.com

Swim lesson registration for both members and non-members is available online until June 20. Swim lessons will be offered in four two-week sessions: Session I: June 30 – July 11, Session II: July 14 – July 25, Session III: July 28 – Aug. 8, Session IV: Aug. 11 – Aug. 22.

For those who miss the June 20, swim lesson online registration deadline, walk-in registration for swim lessons will be available at the front desk. The CSC will be opening the weekend of June 21. Members and non-members can sign-up anytime at the front desk for any one of the four, two-week sessions, first come, first service.

Cohasset Swim Center is offering Advanced Training Courses. Interested in becoming a Certified Lifeguard or Water Safety Instructor?

Lifeguard Certification, June 25 to 27. The W.S.I. Course, June 28 to 30. For Lifeguards needing to renew their certification, C.S.C. is also offering the updated Lifeguard Re-certification with CPR/AED, Saturday, June 21, from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m.

C.S.C. has had an overwhelming response for these programs and limited class space. For more details and to register, simply visit www.cohassetswimcenter.com, go to programs and click on Lifeguard/WSI for more information.

5 THINGS TO DO THIS WEEK

There's plenty to do in and around Cohasset

1 Pre-order lobster rolls: First Parish in Cohasset is offering their Lobster Rolls for sale during the South Shore Art's Festival on Fathers' Day weekend. The price of the all-meat Lobster Roll and a bag of Cape Cod potato chips remains the same as last year – only $13. You may want to pre-order* your Lobster Rolls, so that you don't miss out. For lobster roll pre-orders email firstlobster@verizon.net or call Diana Kornet at 781-383-6576. Deadline to pre-order: Wednesday, June 11 at 6 p.m. Enjoy free delivery on Friday, June 13, for pre-orders of four and more rolls.*

2 Holly Hill benefit: Have dinner at the b.good restaurant at Derby Street in Hingham on June 11 from 5 to 9 p.m. and a portion of all sales will be donated to the Friends of Holly Hill Farm to support farm and school garden programs around the South Shore. The Quinoa bowl entre will feature kale grown by students in school farm gardens at many of the farm's partner schools!

3 Historical Society lecture: The Cohasset Historical Society again welcomes geologist, Peter Dillon, on Wednesday, June 11, at 7:30 p.m.; come at 7 p.m. for light refreshments. Peter will talk about the formation of the ledges, and the geology of the rocks in Cohasset with emphasis on the "Cohasset Granite", a composition unique to this area. There is no charge for the program, although donations are cheerfully accepted.

4 Auditions: Kids' Cabaret is a non-profit organization run by high school and college students that is geared towards producing an annual summer musical featuring the talents of kids aged 8 to 16 from across the South Shore. Auditions will be held for "Seussical Jr." "Seussical." You're guaranteed to have fun and make plenty of new friends. Auditions are on June 9 and 10 at St. John's Church, 172 Main St., Hingham.

5 Carillon concert: Members of the Cohasset High School Graduation Class of 1964 will celebrate their 50th reunion on Saturday, June 7. As part of the festivities, Mary Kennedy, Carillonneur at St. Stephens Church, will begin playing at 4 p.m. a medley of sentimental and romantic songs popular during the 1960s. All are welcome to gather on the Common to enjoy – and perhaps sing along – to the memorable music of the 1960s.

SAVE THE DATE

Meet Cohasset's newest working dog

The Cohasset Working Dog Foundation will have its first service dog join its ranks this month.

Service Dog (SD) Parker, a 1-year-old Goldendoodle, will arrive in Cohasset on June 13 to work with a 7-year-old Cohasset girl. It's the Foundation's first service dog funded through a grant.

The public is invited to a special event on Sunday, June 15 at 5:15 p.m. to meet SD Parker and learn more about the role and training of service dogs. The event will take place in the most shaded area of the common between St. Stephen's and Meetinghouse Pond.

SD Parker's trainers will be on hand to discuss Parker's yearlong training efforts. This will be the public's only chance to meet and greet with Parker before he takes on his full-time service dog responsibilities.

Cohasset Police K9 Erik and therapy dogs Lyle and Sophie – all dogs supported by the Cohasset Working Dog Foundation – will be also be at the event.

For more information, visit cohassetworkingdog.org or send an email to info@cohassetworkingdog.org.

OPEN MIC

Ground Level Café birthday bash

It's been a whole year since Ground Level's very first coffeehouse for teens and young adults. Tonight (Friday, June 6), Ground Level marks the occasion with a true birthday bash – which means cake, presents, games, and, of course, heartfelt local music from 7 to 10 p.m.

Cohasset's Ground Level Café was founded last year as a safe, supportive venue for teen and twenty-something performing artists.

Performances are on the first Friday of every month in the basement of Beechwood Congregational Church (51 Church Street, Cohasset). Open mic starts at 7 p.m. with a featured local artist performing an hour-long set.

This month's featured artist is Boston musician Shaggy Dupes. Rounding out the night are performances by Ground Level regulars, Evan Ackley, Evan Canney and Becca Fredey, and local duos Mark and Sarah Huber and Erin Dale and Mark Darling.

Stick around after the performances for more fun and games, and the monthly "group jam." No cover at the door; snacks, coffee and tea are provided for a small donation.

For more on Ground Level, visit on Facebook (www.facebook.com/groundlevelcaf) or follow on Twitter @GroundLevelCaf.

AROUND TOWN

Top honors in statewide anti-tobacco poster contest

JENNIFER PIEPENBRINK

Summer!

Hey Cohasset, I hope this week has been a good one for you and that you are enjoying the somewhat, summer-like weather. Slowly but surely, it feels more and more like a true, summer day should...warm, dry and filled with fun. With graduations, end of year celebrations, Farmers Markets and other outdoor events all around, some nice weather is welcome, that's for sure.

Appreciation

I received a message from the family of Jim Lydon, who passed away a few months ago. Kate, young Jimmy and Libby wanted to thank all of those who attended a recent game, played in Jim's honor. All monies and donations from that night are going to the family. It takes a village Cohasset and this yet one more example of that...so awesome and thank you.

On stage

Congratulations from family and friends to Rebecca Dickinson who graduated Magna Cum Laude with a Bachelor of Music in Musical Theater from The Benjamin T. Rome School of Music at The Catholic University of America in Washington, D.C. Rebecca will join the Commonwealth Shakespeare Company this summer as an apprentice. Such great news about a wonderful gal!

Poster contest

Congratulations to Nayantara Dutta, a sixth-grader from Cohasset, who has won top honors in the 2014 Massachusetts Medical Society and Alliance Anti-Tobacco Poster Contest, an annual educational event to alert schoolchildren to the dangers of tobacco and smoking.

Nayantara was one of just 12 winners selected from more than 3,500 entries to the competition. Her entry, titled "I won't smoke because of all the things I'll leave behind," depicted a cemetery with headstones, showing the fatal effects of smoking.

The competition, open to students in grades one to six throughout Massachusetts, asks students to create an original poster that ties in with certain themes for their grade. Nayantara was recognized at a special May 28 event at the Massachusetts State House in Boston along with the other winners, where they received a certificate from the Medical Society and a gift card for books as prizes. Winning entries will also be included in a 2015 calendar produced by the Medical Society that will be distributed to schools, pediatricians, and family physicians across the Commonwealth.

To view all winning entries, visit: massmed.org/tobacco

Good stretch

'Yoga On the Common' with Balance Studio started yesterday and will continue on Thursdays from 5-6 pm. Uniting Yoga with the outdoors is a special practice. Explore the sounds of nature and the rhythms of the wind. Gather your fruits and Veggies at the farmers market and saunter over to gather clarity in your mind, body and soul.

Clemson

Stephanie Frances Brierley of Cohasset, whose major is biological sciences, was named to the president's list at Clemson University for the 2014 spring semester. To be named to the president's list, a student must achieve a 4.0 (all As) grade-point average.

DeSales

Cohasset resident Thomson Jaffe graduated magna cum laude with a bachelor of arts degree in theater on May 17, 2014.

WPI

The following Cohasset students were named to Worcester Polytechnic Institute's dean's list for academic excellence for the 2014 spring semester: Matthew Beck, a senior majoring in chemical engineering; and Sarah Mavilia, a junior majoring in civil engineering. WPI does not compute a grade point average. Instead, WPI defines the dean's list by the amount of work completed at the A level in courses and projects.

Vermont

Some 2,904 students were awarded a variety of bachelor's degrees during the University of Vermont's 213th commencement ceremonies on May 18, 2014. The following Cohasset residents earned degrees: Mackenzie Hart, bachelor of science, environmental sciences, College of Agriculture & Life Science; Chase Manifase, bachelor of arts, religion, College of Arts & Sciences; and Matthew Pescatore, master of science degree in community development & applied economics, Graduate College.

St. Lawrence

Natalie G. Dignam of Cohasset was selected for inclusion on the dean's list for academic achievement during the 2014 spring semester at St. Lawrence University in Canton, N.Y. Dignam, a member of the Class of 2015, is majoring in English. Natalie graduated from Cohasset Jr.-Sr. High School. To be eligible for the dean's list, a student must have completed at least four courses and have an academic average of 3.6 based on a 4.0 scale for the semester.

Connecticut

The following Cohasset students have achieved Dean's High Honors, recognition for students who have earned a grade point average of at least 3.77, for the 2014 spring semester at Connecticut College.

- Abigail Faulkner, a member of the class of 2014.
- Victoria Wade, a member of the class of 2015.

DVDs

DVDs of the 2014 CHS Senior Pre Prom Red Carpet Gala are available to purchase for $20 and make great graduation gifts! To order a copy please call Shaun Galvin at 781-424-2197 (cell) or email your request to galvin_sm@hotmail.com. Requests can also be mailed with a check for $20 per DVD to Shaun Galvin P.O. Box 526 Hingham, MA 02043. Checks should be made payable to Shaun Galvin.

Also Shaun will be videotaping the 2014 CHS Graduation for the 4th straight year on Saturday June 14th. DVD copies of the 2014 CHS Graduation will also be available for sale for $20.

Watercolors

The South Shore Art Center presents "Near & Far — Travels in Watercolor" by artist Maureen Brookfield at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library, July 1 through August 31. Come and meet the artist at a free reception on Friday, July 11th from 5-7 pm at the library. Stop by the library during open hours to view.

That is the news for this week Cohasset. Send in all your news, photos and celebration info to me no later than Tuesdays by 5 pm.

Just an FYI. We receive dean's list and honors notices from many colleges and private schools, but not all. If your son or daughter has earned recognition, please share that news directly with us!

We also LOVE new baby announcements with photos if possible. Need birth date, weight, length, names of siblings, parents and grandparents. Emailed photos are fine but glossies can be dropped off at Tedeschi's in the village in our Mariner drop box.

TENNIS ANYONE?

Rec program serves up fun

The Cohasset Recreation Department has been teaching tennis to the youngest generation since 1972. In fact, one of this year's tennis "pros" is an alumnus of this 43-year summer tradition. Meredith Corry and Jack Coffman, both students at Cohasset High School (CHS), will instruct kids ages 7-12 all summer long at the Bancroft Field tennis courts. Both Corry and Coffman picked up their racquet at a very young age and look forward to sharing their love of the game with the kids. If their last names sound familiar it's because both of them have siblings who taught the Tennis Program last Summer.

Youth Tennis is a seven-week program that runs from July 7th to August 14th. Each participant will have two hours of instruction per week.

Youth Tennis is a seven-week program that runs from July 7th to August 14th. Each participant will have two hours of instruction per week. It's an introductory program that will teach students the different parts of the court; how to keep score; and basic foundations so they can take their skills farther if they decide they like it.

Corry, a junior, began taking lessons when she was nine years old as part of the Recreation Department Program. Coffman, a sophomore began at age four. Both are members of the Cohasset High School tennis team.

"I'm excited to now be instructing in the very place where I first learned how to play," says Corry. "I'm looking forward to sharing the game of tennis with the kids and to help develop their skills."

Coffman eventually turned in his racquet for a lacrosse stick. At age 10 he put the lacrosse stick down and very happily went back to tennis, saying that he always knew he wouldn't be away from the sport for too long.

"I'm looking forward to having a positive impact on the younger generation and hopefully instill in them a love of the game," says Coffman.

Classes are kept small to provide as much individualized attention as possible. Games like "Jail" and "Alligator" are fun ways the kids will learn the basics.

"I love that tennis can be played at a very old age, as well as a very young age," says Corry.

At $89, the Director of the Recreation Department, Ted Carroll, is proud to point out that this Cohasset Summer Program is truly "one of the best bargains in town."

To register visit cohassetrec.com or stop by the Recreation Office at Town Hall.

SOUTH SHORE ART CENTER

Take a tour of 'The Animorph Kingdom'

Highlighting the 59th Annual Arts Festival on the Common June 13-15, is an intriguing sculptural installation made entirely of corrugated cardboard by 18 local high school students on display at South Shore Art Center. "The Kingdom of the Animorphs" features four giant creatures, each one composed of elements of three different real-life animals, picked at random.

Sporting two heads, one with a curly mane and the other with a shaggy head, the "Cheellamalo" consists of parts of a cheetah, llama and buffalo. Imagine a 17-foot tall animorph, the "Mamooffe" combining woolly mammoth, giraffe and moose, whose head hardly clears the gallery ceiling with its large antlers and tusks. The "Hippormel" derives from the hippo, camel and orangutan. Finally, the "Hippozecheeta" (Rhino/Zebra/Mountain Lion) is known for sleeping in the sun all day, although "for amusement it pushes against other members of the pack and playfully bites them like puppies do."

Nominated by their high school art teachers, the Art Stars were selected because of their artistic ability, their enthusiasm for the project and their interest in collaborating with other high school students, as well as professional artists/teachers. They have worked together over six Saturday workshops since early February to imagine their animorphs, do preliminary drawings , learn different construction techniques using the cardboard and realize their imaginary creatures.

There will be a special display on Cohasset Common during the Arts Festival, describing the creation of "The Animorph Kingdom" and highlighting the achievements of the students. Visitors to the Festival are encouraged to tour the installation in the Art Center Bancroft Gallery, 119 Ripley Road throughout Festival weekend and through July 15.

The FESTIVAL ART STARS program is supported by grants from the local cultural councils of Abington, Braintree, Cohasset, Duxbury, Hanson, Hingham, Hull, Kingston, Plympton and Scituate, local agencies funded by the Massachusetts Cultural Council, a state agency.

South Shore Art Center is open Monday–Saturday 10-4 and Sunday, 12-4.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY

Geologist featured in Wednesday lecture

The Cohasset Historical Society again welcomes geologist, Peter Dillon, to the final Wednesday Evening Lecture of 2014 on Wednesday, June 11. Peter will be talking about the formation of the ledges, and the geology of the rocks in Cohasset with emphasis on the "Cohasset Granite," a composition unique to this area. The title of the talk is "Eyjafjallajokull-Cohasset in Time and Space from the Geologic Record." Yes, the spelling is correct. The program will begin at 7:30 p.m. at the Historical Society headquarters in the Pratt Building, 106 South Main St. There is no charge for the program, although donations are cheerfully accepted.

This program is open to the community and especially all 'Rock Hound' enthusiasts as well as those interested in what makes up this boulder strewn land. Join others at 7 p.m. for light refreshments and a most interesting evening.

One-man show to portray Walt Whitman

Cohasset Elder Affairs will host a performance of "Unlaunch'd Voices, An Evening with Walt Whitman" at 1:30 p.m., on Thursday, June 19. The show opens with the elderly Whitman on the evening of his 70th birthday. The audience is a visitor in his room as he prepares for his birthday celebration. During the telling, Whitman transforms into his young vibrant self and begins to trace back the experiences that led to the creation of "Leaves of Grass," his lifetime work. There is no charge for this performance.

Pre-prom memories

Gray clouds filled up the sky on Friday night, threatening to open, but the rain held off just long enough for most of the Cohasset High School pre-prom red carpet walk on Friday, May 30. A crowd of admirers gathered to watch prom-goers descend the steps of Town Hall and walk the 50-foot red carpet, donated last year by Hollywood star – and CHS alumna – Kate Bosworth.

The boys in their tuxes and girls in their gowns made for a glamorous evening, as students walked the red carpet, posed for photographs, then boarded trolleys to take them to the prom, held at the Black Rock Country Club in Hingham. It was just the beginning of a night to remember.

FASHION

silhouettes, especially when paired with shiny accessories and neatly arranged hair.

Another trend this season was nude, white or cream colored dresses, many adorned with rhinestones or other sparkly accoutrements. Whereas some years are all about the bright colors and patterns, this year's seniors and underclassmen attendees were focused on the clean palettes of neutral colors.

Some girls were not afraid to break out of the norm, though, and went with hot pinks or bright cobalt blues. To counteract the color, these bright dresses had simple silhouettes, as to not distract from the focal point of the dress: the color. Those who had neutrally colored dresses often had more room to play with detailing; as a result, many dresses had sheer paneling in order to add an interesting individualistic detail. Many neutral-colored gowns were also spiced up with open backs, keyhole detailing, or unusual straps.

A few students were bold and chose to forgo the neutral dresses and attracted attention for their more unusual styles. One dress, in particular, comes to mind. This young woman chose a steampunk, bronze-colored dress with a hoop skirt (I hope she doesn't mind my admiration for her spunk!). Her date also nixed the traditional black tuxedo, opting instead to wear a traditional Scottish kilt. He wasn't the only male to go against tradition, however, as there was at least one date with a spiffy red tuxedo jacket.

As for hairstyles, long waves and waterfall braids were most popular, as opposed to the abundance of updos of prior years. Most girls chose simple, though beautiful, unadorned styles, reminiscent of celebrities such as Emma Stone's plaited hairstyle exhibited on the red carpet earlier this year at the Met Gala.

In the same vein as the minimalist hairstyles, many girls chose not to wear jewelry, instead choosing to allow their dresses to shine as the main event. Many necks were unadorned, but the intricate beadwork on their gowns made up for the sparkle usually provided by jewelry.

All in all, the pre-prom red-carpet event was – as it always is – a smashing success. Judging by the crowds of families and friends, it is always a well-attended event in our little seaside town, worthy of making Kate Bosworth – a fixture of best-dressed lists and CHS alum – proud (in fact, she donated the red carpet the prom-goers parade down!).

Personally, I can't wait to see what trends show up next year — my senior year!

OUR VIEW

Always lock up!

When it comes to crime, some people believe there is little that an individual can do to prevent it. After all, we live in challenging times. Drug abuse is a societal issue that is at the root of much illegal activity.

However, there is a simple way to prevent your motor vehicle from being "entered" and ransacked: lock it!

We would like to think that a car parked in our driveway is safe. We like to hark back to those "Andy of Mayberry" days of our youth when Cohasset and surrounding communities had that "small town" atmosphere where most people did not even have to lock their homes. While it is debatable whether leaving our homes unlocked was simply foolish or OK because the world was a safer place — the time has come to face reality and lock up.

Cars often contain a treasure trove of "stuff" for a would-be thief. There are GPS units, loose change, sometimes cameras or cell phones and more.

While Cohasset has not had reports of cars being "entered" over the past week – at this time of year with warmer weather, the crime is pretty predictable.

Just down the road last weekend neighbors in South Hingham reported their unlocked cars had been rummaged through and items stolen. All were parked in the driveways and were not locked. Among the items stolen were a checkbook, a garage door opener, loose change, designer sunglasses, a full set of golf clubs and a golf bag.

If there is an item of value in plain view in a car (such as a pocketbook or packages) a would-be thief might take things a step further and break the window to retrieve the items if the car is locked. So please put items out of view in a locked trunk. If you are taking your dog for a walk at Thayer and Whitney Woods, for example, — put any valuables in your trunk before heading out.

There is no excuse for not locking your car at night or in any parking lot or area. With today's remote devices, if you think you forgot to lock up — just press the lock button and listen for that familiar signal from your car that it is locked.

Police ask if you notice any suspicious cars, people or activity in your neighborhood overnight please call them and give as much information as you can. Typically, these suspect(s) walk through neighborhoods checking the doors of all unlocked cars for valuables.

Carillon concert for Class of 1964

Members of the Cohasset High School Graduation Class of 1964 will celebrate their 50th reunion on Saturday, June 7. As part of the festivities, Mary Kennedy, Carillonneur at St. Stephens Church, will begin playing at 4 p.m. a medley of sentimental and romantic songs popular during the 1960s. All are welcome to gather on the Common to enjoy – and perhaps sing along – to the memorable music of the 1960s.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Comparison: VA and Obamacare

The VA Healthcare System compartmentalizes veterans into eight priority groups. Some veterans are not eligible for enrollment because of income thresholds. Most veterans' spouses and children are not covered by their spouse's VA healthcare.

Generally, Obamacare entitlements provide broader coverage, more timely appointments and convenient locations at less cost than for veterans and their dependents.

Community support appreciated for pre-, post-prom

On May 30, 2014 Cohasset High School seniors and their dates partook in the time-honored tradition of walking the Red Carpet in front of hundreds of people on the town common before they boarded the trolleys to attend their Senior Prom.

On behalf of the 2014 Red Carpet and Post Prom Committee, we would like to thank our many wonderful sponsors, volunteers and donors. The Red Carpet and Post Prom Event can't be accomplished without the support from the community.

Special thanks go to Village Greenery who once again allows the committee to borrow plants to decorate the Red Carpet and to Doug Achin for transporting them back and forth. Thanks to Dan Leahy, photographer extraordinaire, who captures every moment and to Nobles Camera Shop of Hingham who provides 5x7 photos for the prom goers.. Thanks to Dependable Cleaners who loaned rolling racks and hangers to hangup the formal wear. Thanks go to Guy Reynolds and Faoud Alzaibak who worked with us to provide a unique and safe venue for the post prom party at the Cohasset Sports Complex. Thank you to Jeff Pratt who led a group of volunteers in chaperoning the post prom and providing security at the venue.

Thank you to the Cohasset Board of Selectmen and Town Manager Chris Senior for providing access to Town Hall and the roadway around the common for the Red Carpet.

Thank you to Carolyn Connelly and Brian Scott from CHS who assisted with logistics and paperwork.

Thank you to Wayne Sawchuck, the Second Congregational Church for the audio system and the chairs, to Linda Pratt, the Cohasset Police Department and all of our sponsors: Strecker Eye Care Center, King Jewelers, Cohasset Dental, Victoria's Pizzeria, Cohasset Jeweler's, James Clark Electric, Cohasset Collision, Coastal Dealerships, South Shore Community Center, Atlantic Brokerage Group, Tiryaki Architectural Design, The Naughton Company, Fiori's Gulf, the Cohasset PSO, Coastal Countryside , JJ's ,Sealcoating Inc, Pilgrim Bank, Cohasset House of Pizza, Darilynn's and all of the very generous parents and friends who made it possible through their kind donations.

And finally, thank you to the countless volunteers who helped in any and all ways asked of them to make both events such a success.

We appreciate everyone's hard work.

Ellen Maher & Diane Benson, Co-Chairs Red Carpet/Post Prom 2014

Cannot thank you enough!

Editor's note: the following letter to Mrs. Maher and Mrs. Benson was provided to the Mariner for publication.

Dear Mrs. Maher and Mrs. Benson,

On behalf of the CHS Class of 2014, I am writing to you to express my sincere gratitude to you both for your generous efforts as the co-chairs of the Pre & Post Prom Committee. From the moment we set foot on the Common for the red carpet ceremony to the closing moments of the fun-filled Post-Prom event, we were fortunate enough to reap the benefits of the hard work of your committee. Your laborious hours of preparation certainly provided a wonderful and engaging environment for Prom attendees to enjoy.

Once again, we cannot thank you enough for making our Prom night a safe and memorable occasion that we will cherish for many years to come!

Warmest regards,

Timothy Cavanaro, President, CHS Class of 2014

Governance is not a four-letter word

MARY JO LARSON

Governance is sometimes confused with "government," or worse, portrayed as a threat to legitimate systems. Meanwhile, in India, where the biggest election in human history just took place in the world's largest democracy, newly elected Prime Minister Narendra Modi has attracted voters with the promise of "less government and more governance" (voter turnout of 66 percent).

What is governance and why such a priority? Simply stated, governance is "value added." In towns and municipalities, effective governance practices support and enhance the legal and regulatory frameworks of local government. Effective systems align ethical values, social norms and institutional structures. Principles such as responsibility, accountability, fairness and transparency advance good governance practices.

Cohasset has an abundance of talented and engaged residents contributing to the town's governance. Whether serving as selectmen, committee and commission members or dedicated volunteers, citizens are investing their valuable resources (time, skills, money) for the benefit of the community.

In our elections and town meetings – even as we spar (or battle) over proposed changes in town policies, capital investments, conservation priorities or hiring procedures – we are exercising the "right" to engage in our town's governance. Ideally, as circumstances change, respectful debates contribute to the checks and balances of a fair, adaptable and resilient town governance system.

The challenge, within Cohasset and all communities, is to more fully inform and engage citizens in the decision making that affects tax rates, the management of infrastructures, conservation of natural resources, the quality of education, and other vital services. The selectmen recognize this priority.

Each year, the selectmen invite citizens to apply for a variety of openings on town committees and commissions. Details are posted on the Town of Cohasset website – and all are encouraged to participate. The more inclusive, open and effective our involvement as citizens, the more informed and accountable the town's managers and decision makers. That's the meaning, and the benefit, of town governance.

Mary Jo Larson lives at 12 Virginia Lane.

BRIEFLY

Committee application approved

The Board of Selectmen voted unanimously (5-0) to approve a revised version of the application form to join town committees and boards. The revision included adding a line indicating whether the form was for a reappointment.

The selectmen will discussion committees and their charges during a future meeting. In the meantime, they ask that all those seeking reappointment turn in their applications by Thursday, June 12, so the selectmen will have the information in their meeting packets for Tuesday, June 17. New applicants are asked to turn in their requests by Thursday, June 19.

GROWING ON THE FARM

The magic of sugar snap peas

JON BELBER

When kids gathered at school gardens in March to sow peas in the cold, cold growing beds, it was still too cool outside for them to germinate. Many peas were started indoors, with hopes for a smooth transplant.

In case the long winter is not quite forgotten, I sit with a blanket on in early June, to consider the farm, the plants and the season. The slowly warming days still yield to cool, breezy nights. The peas are slowly growing. The tendrils are barely attached to the pea fences and trellises. The hope for sugar snap pea pods at many area school farm gardens may not yet be a reality. This edible crop that grows from seed to shiny seed takes about 65 days, and the timing is crucial, so as to have success during the school year. Though radishes only take 25-30 days, the sometimes spicy root crop is not as appealing to a new grower. We farmers and teachers like to grow food with interest and enjoyment, as we grow and teach new and old converts about organic farming.

When kids gathered at school gardens in March to sow peas in the cold, cold growing beds, it was still too cool outside for them to germinate. Many peas were started indoors, with hopes for a smooth transplant. But a lot of crops have a hard time adjusting to the great outdoors, especially here in New England where there are many dramatic changes and fluctuations in the temperature. So teachers and farmers have had to wait and hope and in some cases, sow again the seeds or plug in new transplant replacements. Second-grade students and young eager farmers from the newly growing Pingree school in Weymouth sowed their sugar snap peas on April 16th, while on their inaugural field trip to the farm. Though mostly excited by the animals and the first time for many visit to the farm, they were pleased to sow peas. When I returned to the school with two flats of peas the other day in late May, there was greater anticipation, as we eagerly transplanted them into their new garden bed in the heart of Jackson Square, beside the kindergarten room where young, tenderly growing and cared-for butterflies were about to fly free. When we determined that the school year would in fact be in session until the 24th of June, there were sighs of joy and frustration. Frustration at the thought of slowly disappearing summer and joy at the thought of snapping off the crisp, sugary pods for a quick, healthy, local, edible snack.

The very next day, though, the same students can travel to their new neighborhood Whole Foods to purchase peas or any other vegetable and support the educational programs at the farm. The generous 5 percent day donation from Whole Foods, allows us to keep teaching and maybe reaching additional school kids in Weymouth, and maybe Quincy and Braintree, too. For that matter, who is to say the students from Pingree would not soon be able to grow some crops in their garden for to sell to a Whole Foods or at a farmers market. There is quite a lot of outfield behind the Pingree where beds could be built, crops could be sown and folks from the community could come take part in some positive efforts to grow food for the school and neighbors. This whole growing and changing and planning and planting takes a lot of work and not everyone has a team of cultivators similar to the staff a on the south lawn of the White House. But grow, bed-by-bed, tendril-by-reaching-and-dancing tendril we do. Through cold and eventual summer sun, the peas and other crops will flourish at school farm gardens and in farmer's fields. And with enthusiasm, others and I will hopefully soon, while in school or on vacation, be able to snap off a pod and indulge. More to grow, snap, taste and sow again.

His column appears twice monthly in the Mariner. He can be reached by email at jbelberhollyhill@hotmail.com. For information on upcoming programs at Holly Hill, visit www.hollyhillfarm.org.

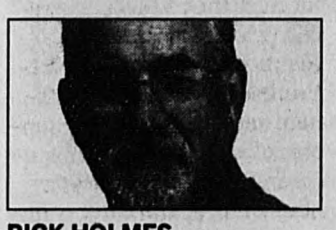
Mass. GOP: This time it's different



RICK HOLMES

The old story of the Massachusetts Republican Party is written in the record; No Republicans hold statewide office or represent the state in Congress. Democrats have controlled both houses of the state Legislature since 1959.

This year will be different, say the leaders of the Mass. GOP, and it would certainly be newsworthy if they can overcome any of the multiple factors behind that legacy of defeat.

Those factors stretch from the Berkshires to Boston to Washington. The national GOP wrote off Massachusetts long ago. National money sometimes flows to a marquee candidate like Scott Brown or Mitt Romney, but not to the state party organization. Tight budgets and uphill prospects make it hard for the Republicans to recruit top candidates and campaign staff.

It's long been a pretty shallow talent pool at party headquarters, one GOP insider told me. Out of that pool have come some smart-alecks who confuse the electorate with the audience for conservative talk radio. They've run campaigns that were nastier than their candidates, and turned to stunts – picketers dressed like convicts marching outside Deval Patrick's Milton home, war whoops and tomahawk chops outside Elizabeth Warren rallies - that backfired.

Unable to field or fund a full slate of candidates, the party has settled for a "win just one" strategy, focusing all its resources on winning the governor's race or, in Brown's case, a Senate seat. That left "down-ticket" Republicans begging for money and attention, while the top candidate's organization, not the party, ran the show.

Even when the "win just one" strategy worked, it's been "one-and-done" for the winners, who left the state behind – Bill Weld for New York, Paul Cellucci for Canada, Romney for one of his other homes and now Brown for New Hampshire – and left the state GOP as weak as ever.

Operationally, the state party has never had a ground game. There are wide swaths of Western Massachusetts where you can't find a Republican town committee, one Republican told me. Brian Wynne, who is heading a new statewide organizing effort for the party, said he found boxes with information on 15,000 voters collected by volunteers knocking on doors for Brown's 2012 campaign. Nobody had bothered to put the data into the computer.

This year it will be different, Wynne told a recent gathering of Republicans. The party already has 18 field offices open, twice as many as the Brown campaign had on Election Day. His team has recruited 300 town and precinct captains, and has a new database system.

"We're targeting voters at a new level we've never done before," he said.

Party Chair Kirsten Hughes told the gathering of MetroWest GOP activists – which itself was something of an innovation – that she's excited that Republicans have a full slate of candidates for statewide office. Other than the one at the top of the ticket, none are household names, but none are embarrassments either.

At the top of the ticket is Charlie Baker, and he too says this year will be different.

Baker lost to Patrick four years ago. His "Had Enough?" campaign had some of the smart-aleck edge that marked other GOP efforts, along with customary tough-guy Republican promises to roll back taxes and lay off government workers.

This time Baker has hired new advisers, most of them from out-of-state. They include Will Keyser, who was a top communications aide to Sen. Ted Kennedy and former U.S. Rep. Marty Meehan. He's dropped the no-taxes pledge and the combative stance.

His friends didn't recognize the candidate who ran in 2010, Baker said as he opened his new campaign. This time he'll be himself, "that goofy family guy, that really enthusiastic, hard-charging, set-the-bar-high, let's-go-get-it-type leader." He'll listen more, and showcase his family and his moderate views. To mark the 10th anniversary of same-sex marriage in Massachusetts, Baker released a video featuring his brother recalling how supportive Charlie was when he came out of the closet.

The party's convention in March showed some familiar pitfalls. The GOP's best prospect to break into the Congressional delegation, Richard Tisei, boycotted the convention because the party platform was stridently pro-life and anti-marriage equality. After the convention, controversy erupted over whether party officials had miscounted the ballots to keep Mark Fisher, a tea party candidate, from challenging Baker in the primary, and whether party leaders tried to bribe Fisher to go away.

So, will this year be different? Without the popular Patrick on the ballot, Republicans have a real shot at winning one race, and maybe this is the year they start building a real grassroots organization. But no one's ever gone broke betting against the Massachusetts Republican Party.

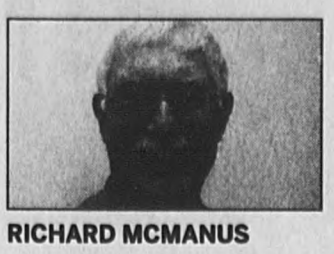
LESSONS LEARNED

What Denis Charles told Joel Forrester

'Preparing for Improvisation: A Paradox'



RICHARD MCMANUS

What is the value of preparation, discipline, and structure? This story has always reminded me that such elements are critical to successful learning.

I have been fortunate to know some remarkable people in my life. Among them is Joel Forrester, another product of Pittsburgh. If you listen to NPR, you have heard Joel's compositions. Joel wrote the theme song for the radio show "Fresh Air," which has been played more than 200,000 times in the past three years. In addition, the band he co-founded with Phillip Johnson, The Microscopic Septet, recorded many NPR "Bumpers" that continue to be played between shows or bits of shows. The Microscopics became an underground sensation in New York and recorded seven albums that are unique in the way they approach both unison playing and support for the soloists. The Village Voice called them, oxymoronically, "The finest retro-futurists around."

It was another band called People Like Us that brought together Joel with Denis Charles, a remarkable drummer who performed with the leading avant-garde jazz musicians of his day. Despite his avant-garde roots, Denis's style was extremely rhythmic and accessible – he was a "talky" drummer who echoed and amplified what he heard from other players. He had "ears" – he could hear every member of a band and would support, echo, and even harmonize with their playing. His gift as a drummer was a special sweetness that flowed from his playing. No matter how hard driving or wild the piece might be, he was always swinging and tasty.

Denis and Joel performed together over 10 years, and they shared stories as well as music. Denis told Joel a story that has long resonated with me. It is a story about Cecil Taylor, the pianist who first played free jazz. Cecil had an important booking coming up, a performance at Carnegie Hall with a big band. Denis was to be the drummer for the performance, and he was extremely excited about it.

Uncharacteristically, Cecil had the band in rehearsal for two months, playing a repertoire of standards and originals that Cecil had created for the occasion. The band rehearsed sometimes several times a week. This many practice sessions were not ordinary in improvisational jazz, but the more the group rehearsed the tighter the music got. As the concert approached, Denis grew more excited. There was a complex and delicate interplay within the structure that Denis found very pleasing. The concert was going to be a great exposure for each of the musicians, and Denis couldn't wait.

After all the rehearsals, it is initially difficult to understand what happened when the curtain went up on the night of the concert. Cecil looked up from the piano and, discarding two months of practice, said to his fellow musicians, "Just play out!" This meant that all of the players would be playing free jazz. The rehearsals, the lovely tunes, the painstakingly rehearsed nuances, the interplay that Denis had loved would not be a part of the concert. The band played, and played very well, but all of the preparation was seemingly for naught.

After the concert Denis went up to Cecil and asked what happened: "Cecil, man, those tunes were beautiful; why didn't we play them?" Cecil's response has always struck me as a perfect example of the importance of intense preparation. "If I had asked everyone to come over to play improvised music I would not have had your attention. You all learned to play together with that structure – that was the purpose, to get you ready to play together."

What is the value of preparation, discipline, and structure? This story has always reminded me that such elements are critical to successful learning. They are the foundations on which improvisational success is built. They do not squelch creativity; they foster it. Once mastered, a set of skills can be varied and set to new music. We can't "play out" in life if we haven't mastered the skills on which free expression is based. Cecil's genius was the ability to bring intensity and purpose to rehearsal and, in the penultimate moment, to trust to the foundations he had built. This is a key part of the way I believe education should work. Every student must be as fully engaged as possible for the outcome to be effective learning. Every student should have a sense of purpose. Every student should have the foundations necessary to build something one-of-a-kind. Once foundational skills are mastered, who knows what a student will do with them or where they will lead? Who knows how those skills will combine with the gifts of others to create collaborative grace? We must, paradoxically, practice for improvisation, plan for it, work toward it, and when the foundations are in place, have the wisdom to welcome it in.

Richard McManus is the director of the Fluency Factory, now located at Old Colony Square off Route 3A in Cohasset.

PUSHING THE EDGE

Wicked Smaht!

GLENN MANGURIAN

Congratulations to the Class of '14! Among its members are some wicked smaht graduates raised by wicked smaht parents. In fact if you are reading this column, you're probably smaht also. But how do we know if someone is smaht? Well we have to start by a definition of smaht and therein lies the problem. You see there are different types of smahts. We commonly talk about two types of intelligence:

• Book smaht

The general definition of book smaht is someone who knows a lot of facts, succeeds scholastically (good grades and high SAT scores), but may have trouble putting that knowledge into real world practice.

• Street Smaht

We think of a street smaht person as someone who has good common sense and is intelligent, and knows what's going on in the real world and uses that knowledge to succeed in life. This person gets his or her knowledge from trial and error, from listening to people and exchanging thoughts and opinions. He or she may or may not do well academically.

We all have some combination of book and street smahts but life isn't that simple. Howard Gardner proposed a different way of looking at intelligence in his 1983 book "Frames of Mind: The Theory of Multiple Intelligences." Gardner articulated nine abilities to be considered as different facets of intelligence.

1. Musical - Rhythmic and Harmonic Smaht

Have good pitch, and the ability to sing, play musical instruments, and compose music.

2. Visual - Spatial Smaht

Visualize or imagine things that don't exist. Also have a good sense of direction, hand-eye coordination, and visual memory.

3. Verbal - Linguistic Smaht

Good at reading, writing, telling stories, learning languages and memorizing words along with dates.

4. Logical - Mathematical Smaht

Be comfortable with numbers, logic, abstractions, reasoning, patterns, inductive and deductive thinking.

5. Bodily - Kinesthetic Smaht

Good at physical activities such as sports, dance, acting and making things.

6. Interpersonal or People Smaht

Understand and be sensitive to others' moods, feelings, temperaments and motivations. Having effective verbal and nonverbal communication, the ability to note distinctions among others and be open to multiple perspectives.

7. Intrapersonal or Self Smaht

Be introspective and self-reflective. Having a deep understanding of the self; what one's strengths/weaknesses are, what makes one unique, and predict one's own reactions/emotions.

8. Naturalistic Smaht

Nurture and relate information to one's natural surroundings – the greater ecosphere.

9. Existential or Deep Question Smaht

Explore what lies beyond through inquiry, reading or talking with others. Sensitivity and capacity to tackle deep questions about human existence, such as the meaning of life, why do we die, and how did we get here.

So don't worry if you son or daughter didn't graduate Phi Beta Kappa or wasn't the valedictorian. I bet he or she is still wicked smaht in many other ways. That's what I call wicked good!

yoga." And the strip mall location doesn't take away from that; the owner said that despite being in a busy plaza, she has never heard a car whizzing by the center.

The center manages to carve out some green space, visible through the windows in the main studio and smaller practice room, where teachers work on their lessons or self-practice, or students can work on poses in private. The smaller space is also available for workshops and small groups, such as bridal parties.

If you really need to get away from it all, there's a downstairs treatment room for Reiki and massage therapy.

In addition to the studio space, there is also a retail store that carries boho-chic jewelry, tunics and, of course, yoga mats, equipped with a comfortable seating area. O'Callaghan said that the shop and lounge was added on to the side of the main studio to expand and "provide some energy" to the space.

O'Callaghan said that she has loved the center since she first walked through its doors to start her teacher training, after she discovered yoga five years ago and "never looked back."

"This is a gem," she said of the center.

Working alongside O'Callaghan as she embarks on her new path is her daughter Charlotte, a college junior who is studying marketing and spending her summer interning at the center. O'Callaghan has three other daughters, all of whom were raised in Cohasset and attended the public schools.

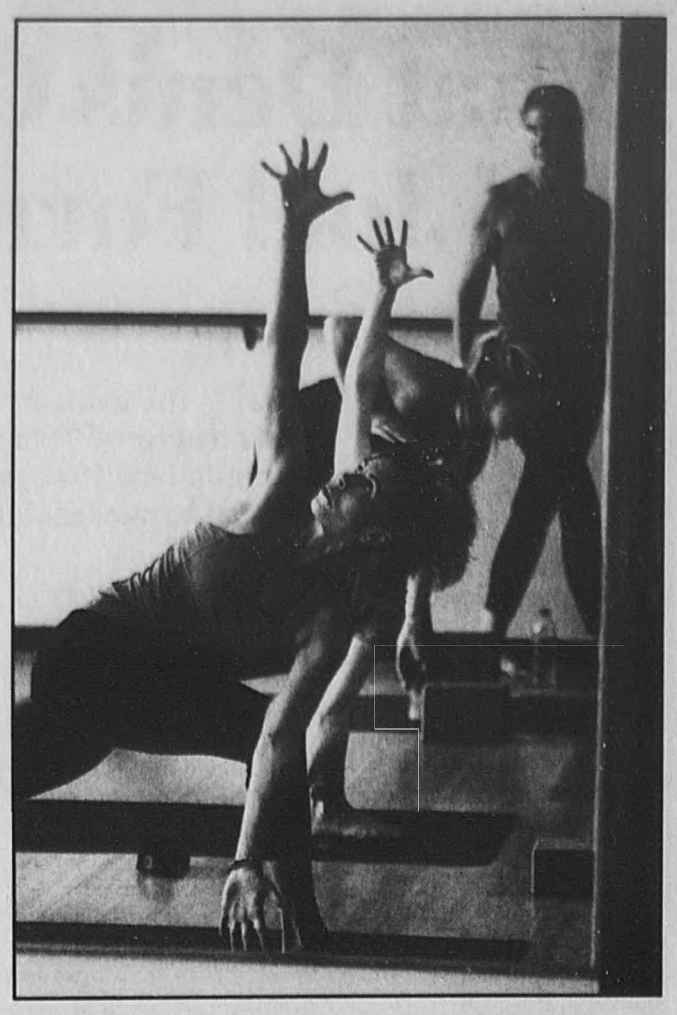
While Charlotte is new to yoga, she "sees the benefits." She has been charged with maintaining the center's new social media platforms, including Facebook, Twitter, and Instagram, and also helping with the website's new blog.

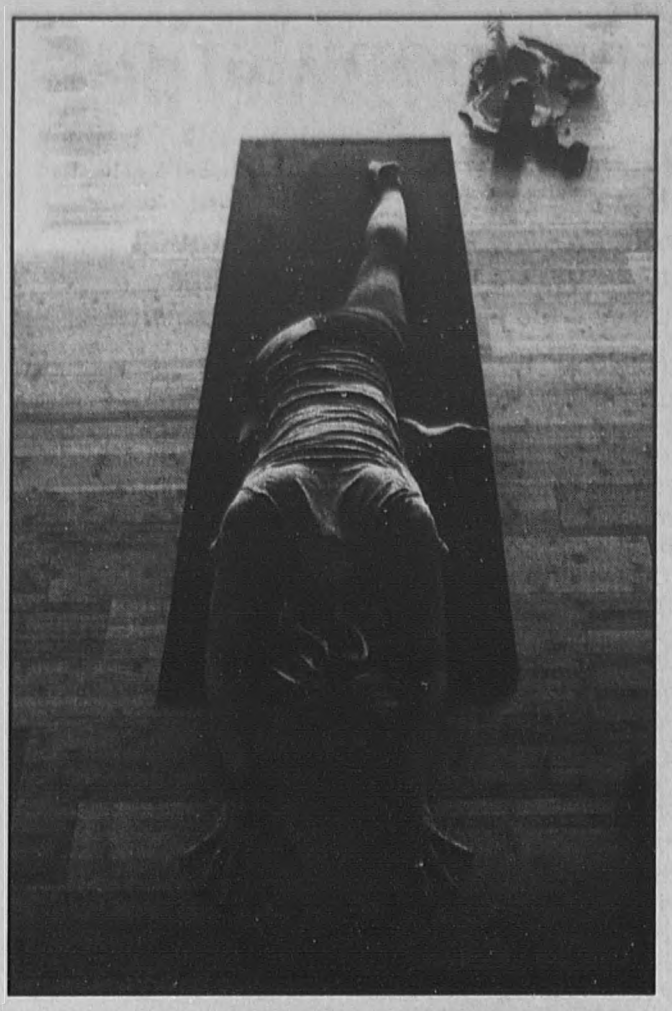
The website was created by Doug Eymer of Eymer Designs, based in Cohasset, and launched this week.

Other new things are on their way to the Yoga Center, including new teachers. O'Callaghan's yoga background is in vinyasa, and she has brought in four new vinyasa teachers. The center also offers ashtanga yoga, and is one of the only studios south of Boston to do so.

If you've practiced yoga at the center in the past, you'll see some new faces among the instructors, but the rest will be familiar. "We didn't have anybody leave," said O'Callaghan, adding that it's testament to the community of the center, which she hopes to build upon.

"This is what yoga is all about – it's a union," O'Callaghan explained, adding that the center is more than just a place to exercise. "It's not about practicing yoga – it's living yoga," she added. "It's who you are."





Cohasset Yoga Center owner/instructor Catherine O'Callaghan looks on at right as Angela Babbuschak and other students perform a crescent twist.

Those who want to try out a class at any level are encouraged to drop in – or just drop by. "You don't have to come for a class," said O'Callaghan. "You can just come!"

You don't have to be a fitness expert or a contortionist to learn to work through various yoga poses. Cindy Mathieson teaches ashtanga yoga, which is the most traditional form of yoga that teaches a set sequence of postures, which "everyone learns in the same order," the instructor explained.

And while the poses, or asanas, range in difficulty, ashtanga involves the instructor working with each individual yogi on their level. "It's not about being able to do fancy poses," said Mathieson. "It's to build health in the body."

This format encourages yogis at all levels to develop their own personal practice, so that they can take their yoga with them wherever they may go, whether they "take their mat to the beach or do it at home," said Mathieson. "It builds the discipline of daily practice."

The poses are also taught in Sanskrit, so that students could take a yoga class in any part of the world, from Berlin to Tokyo, and understand what the names mean. "It's a universal language," said Mathieson.

The center offers ashtanga six days a week, more than any other studio on the South Shore, said Mathieson, who completed her ashtanga training in Boston in 2006.

"Cindy is an accomplished teacher, and we are blessed to have her," said O'Callaghan.

If ashtanga is not your style, there are plenty of others to try, including Kripalu yoga, yin and restorative, and Pilates fusion. Mathieson encourages those new to yoga to "try different styles and find the one that speaks to you."

Being the yogis that they are, the instructors will be flexible. "Most classes are all levels," said O'Callaghan, adding that teachers will accommodate their students of all skill levels.

If you're an advanced athlete of a different persuasion, there's a yoga for that. The center is offering a special workshop for athletes on June 22 from 4 to 6 p.m. to help prevent injuries and balance their training.

"Yoga is the perfect compliment to anything," said O'Callaghan.

Triathlon

The center is also offering a free yoga class to anyone competing in the upcoming Cohasset Triathlon, available throughout the month of June. There is also a "bring a friend to yoga" promotion to earn a free yoga class this month.

O'Callaghan said that she would like the center to continue its charitable tradition on the local level, finding groups to partner with. In the past, the center has given back to the Cohasset and Scituate food pantries.

It's one way to continue the center's traditions. Mathieson said that she thinks O'Callaghan is "just the right person to come here" and keep the center going strong.

"Catherine is a gift, having received something important and wanting to share it," she said. "She has the perfect opportunity here to share her talents."

And while O'Callaghan only recently became a certified yoga instructor, Mathieson argued, "She has probably been a yogi her whole life. She has it innately."

O'Callaghan demurred that she couldn't do any of it alone. "I'm just guiding the boat," she said. "There are a lot of oars in the water."

For more on the Cohasset Yoga Center, including lists of classes and teachers, visit www.cohassetyogacenter.com, call 781-383-314, or stop by the center at 124 King Street (Route 3A) in Jonathan Livingston Square.

Volume 39 - Report No. 22 May 26-30, 2014

Y = Yes; N = No, NV = No Vote (President rarely votes) * Not every item is voted on by both House and Senate

THE HOUSE AND SENATE. Beacon Hill Roll Call records local representatives' votes on two roll calls from the week of May 26-30. There were no roll calls in the Senate last week.
$145 MILLION SUPPLEMENTAL BUDGET (H 4081)
House 122-29, approved, and Secretary of State William Galvin, who is acting governor while Gov. Deval Patrick travels in the Middle East, signed into law, a $145 million supplemental budget to fund various state programs until fiscal year 2014 ends on June 30. Provisions include $526,380 for veterans' benefits, $4 million for the Department of Children and Families Department for guardianship, foster care, adoption and family preservation services, and $27.5 million for charter schools.	*	Y
Supporters said the package is a fiscally responsible one that funds necessary programs including several which are running out of money.
Some opponents said this budget is just a continuation of a string of budgets that are based on the wrong priorities, excessive taxes and insufficient local aid. Others said they voted against the budget because the Democratic leadership has refused to release the details of past and future costs resulting from the collapse of the state's Health Connector website designed to comply with Obamacare. (A "Yes" vote is for the budget. A "No" vote is against it.)
EXPAND BOSTON CONVENTION CENTER (H 4111)
House 131-19, approved and sent to the Senate a $1.1 billion borrowing bill to fund a 1.3 million square-foot expansion of the Boston Convention and Exhibition Center. There are no new taxes or fees created in the bill and funding is provided by existing fees and taxes including a 4.25 percent tax on hotel rooms in Boston and Cambridge and a $10 fee on all car rentals in the Boston.	*	Y
Supporters said Massachusetts is losing substantial business from events that the Boston Convention and exhibition center is too small to accommodate. They argued the project will create 4,000 construction jobs and 2,000 new permanent jobs and generate an estimated $15 million annually in taxes and $185 million in private sector business including restaurants, hotels and other entertainment spending.
Opponents said the state was scheduled to pay off the existing loans that built the convention center by 2034 at which point that money would be available for the state's General Fund to use on projects that will benefit residents across the state. They noted this new expansion will require the state to continue servicing the debt on the $1.1 billion project until 2050, at a loss of $5 billion of revenue that would have been available for the state. (A "Yes" vote is for the bill. A "No" vote is against it.)
ALSO UP ON BEACON HILL
TRANSGENDER PROTECTION (H 3625) - Gov. Deval Patrick signed into law a bill that would add gender identity as a group protected from discrimination in the Boston housing market. Current law prohibits discrimination in several areas including race, color, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, religion, handicap, source of income and military status.
ALLOW SUNDAY HUNTING (H 4114) - The House gave initial approval to a bill that would allow deer hunting on Sundays with a bow and arrow. Current law bans any hunting on Sundays.
Supporters said it is time to abolish this puritanical ban and stop Bay State hunters from traveling to and spending money in neighboring states where Sunday hunting is legal. They argued this would create an estimated 500 new jobs and generate millions of dollars in the private sector as well as tax revenue.
Some opponents said they oppose hunting and are against adding any additional days for this barbaric practice. Others said Sunday hunting will make it dangerous for people who simply want to take nature walks and enjoy the wildlife. They cited a 2007 poll showing that 86 percent of Bay State residents support this restriction and data that 34 percent of the state's population aged 16 or older take part in bird watching, photography, hiking and other wildlife activities while just 1 percent participate in hunting.
NATIONAL GUARD (H 4109) - The House gave initial approval to a new version of a measure filed by Gov. Patrick making changes in the state's National Guard system. When he originally filed the bill, Patrick said, "This bill modernizes the Guard's governing statute, which was last revised in 1953, and brings Massachusetts into conformity with the overwhelming majority of states. This legislation will facilitate the work of the Guard and strengthen the Commonwealth's readiness and resiliency."
INFORMATION ABOUT BREAST RECONSTRUCTION SURGERY (H 1959) - The House gave initial approval to a bill requiring all facilities that provide mastectomy surgery, lymph node dissection or a lumpectomy to provide specific information to the patient in writing prior to the patient giving consent to the procedure. The information would include the advantages and disadvantages of various reconstructive options and the coverage of these surgeries under private and state-funded health insurance.
HEAD INJURIES (H 1983) - The House gave initial approval to a bill requiring physician assistants who work for public schools to annually take the interscholastic athletic head injury safety training program. This would add physician assistants to a current list required to take the training including doctors, nurses, coaches, trainers and volunteers. The key part of the training includes recognizing the symptoms of potentially catastrophic head injuries and concussions.
MOTORCYCLES (H 3055) - The House gave initial approval to a bill giving motorcycle owners nine days, instead of the current seven days, to get their vehicle inspected. Supporters said the additional two days are necessary because there are not an abundance of stations that perform motorcycle inspections and riders are often not able to ride on rainy and snowy days.
PAROLE HEARINGS (H 4084) - The Judiciary Committee heard testimony on a bill that would increase from every five years to every ten years the time second-degree murderers would be granted a parole hearing once they become eligible for parole after serving 15 to 20 years. The statute on time between hearings was increased from three to five years in 1996. The bill is named "Leslie's Law" after Leslie Haynes, who was murdered by a former boyfriend in 1982.
Supporters said every five years is too frequent and subjects victims' families to the nightmare of facing the killer and testifying against the parole.
Opponents said this new law would make first- and second-degree murder almost equal and essentially eliminate the incentive for anyone to plead guilty to second-degree murder.

US CENSUS BUREAU:

Cohasset tops population growth in state since 2010

By Gerry Tuoti
gtuoti@wickedlocal.com

"Cohasset is pretty well built-out, so I don't think it's a trend. We've had some modest growth. I don't see us multiplying over the years."
Selectmen Chairman Diane Kennedy

Updated population estimates from the U.S. Census Bureau show that Massachusetts has grown by more than 2.2 percent since 2010, with the eastern part of the state leading the way.

"I think the level of growth is really striking," said Tim Reardon, assistant director of data services for the Metropolitan Area Planning Council. "Some of these regions have grown as much in the past three years as they did in all of the 2000s. It's a really critical component of the vibrancy of Massachusetts in the coming decade."

The Greater Boston, Merrimack Valley, South Shore and MetroWest regions saw particularly high growth rates, according to the 2013 population estimates the U.S. Census Bureau released on May 28.

"I think the reason why those places have performed so well is in part due to new job growth there and the incredible job growth going on in the inner core of Boston as well," Reardon said.

Cape Cod and the Berkshires, however, saw population declines. Those regions, he said, haven't seen the same level of development and job creation as Greater Boston.

Situated on the South Shore, Cohasset experienced a population increase of nearly 9.7 percent since 2010, making it the fastest-growing community in Massachusetts, according to the Census Bureau.

Some Cohasset officials, however, question whether the U.S. Census Bureau significantly overestimated the town's population and growth. Figures from the town manager and town clerk's offices show much more modest growth, Selectman Diane Kennedy said.

The U.S. Census Bureau's population estimates are based in part on birth rates, death rates and building permits.

Leading the state, Suffolk County saw a 4.6 percent jump in population since the 2010 census. Middlesex County (3.3 percent), Essex County (2.61 percent) and Norfolk County (2.5 percent) all grew at a faster rate than the state average.

The numbers, Reardon said, are most meaningful in larger communities and on the state and county level, as they show evidence of sustained population trends.

He added that it's important to keep in mind that in small communities — Cohasset has a population of less than 8,300 — it can be hard to draw significant conclusions. One or two major housing developments can significantly skew the growth rates.

A large, new apartment complex is likely behind the statistical spike in Cohasset, Selectman Diane Kennedy said.

"Cohasset is pretty well built-out, so I don't think it's a trend," she said. "We've had some modest growth. I don't see us multiplying over the years."

Throughout the first decade of the 2000s, Massachusetts saw an overall population growth of approximately 3 percent, experiencing losses in some years. As its population growth failed to keep pace with other states, Massachusetts lost a representative in Congress.

In addition to job creation in and around Boston, the MAPC also points to efforts at the state and local levels to invest in housing.

News that the state is now gaining residents at a higher pace should be welcome news for cities and towns, as population growth typically leads to higher tax revenues and more disposable income making its way into the economy.

"Population growth and retaining young workers is critical to developing our economy, fueling our labor force and economic growth," Reardon said.

FAIR

The move comes two weeks after the Board of Selectmen approved the event, despite concerns over the mechanical "tubs of fun" ride.

the issue of the bouncy house, wanting to ensure it would be safely "secured to the ground."

Fahie, who was at the meeting, reassured that the house comes equipped with "large metal spikes" that will stick into the ground, and that the house will be inspected before children use it. The nursery school is working with town facilities department director Mark Kelly to provide electricity for the event.

The carnival is geared toward children "of all ages," said Fahie, and includes an inflatable obstacle course, inflatable basketball game and a trackless train, among other games and activities.

Fahie also assured that both the library and Our World Children's Museum (located in back of the library) is ok with having the carnival in the field behind the building, and that the back parking lot will be available for carnival parking (the upper parking lot will be for library patrons only). The South Shore Music Circus lot will also be available for overflow parking.

The police department will also provide a traffic detail, said Fahie.

The selectmen also approved a rain date for the carnival; should the weather fail to cooperate on Saturday, the event will take place the following day (Sunday, June 8) at the same time and place. Since the library is closed on Sundays, the library's upper parking lot would be available for carnival attendees.

The Cohasset Mariner

The Cohasset High School girls lacrosse team didn't lack for drama in the MIAA Division 2 South Sectional Tournament last week.

The girl's started the tournament off with a bang, running away with a 23-11 win over visitor Bourne, but the No. 4 seeded Skippers followed with a tough 10-9 loss to top-seeded Apponoquet in the next round.

Kathryn Dunn led the offense with six goals in the opener, followed by Caelin McDonald with five, Maddie Curley with four and Ally Leahy with three. Bourne jumped out to an early 2-1 lead but goalie Taylor Frederick and the defense of Kyle Burke, Molly Fitzgerald, Caroline Prescott, Megan Fitzgerald and Caty Gilman slowed them down and let the offense take control of the game.

Boys unseat Martha's Vineyard

By William Wassersug
wwassersug@wickedlocal.com

Over the past few years, you didn't have to dig into the books to deeply to find the winner of the MIAA Div. 3 South Sectional Boys Tennis Tournament.

The answer was Martha's Vineyard.

That changed Wednesday when Cohasset upset the No. 2 seeded Vineyard (15-2) 4-1 at the Falmouth Sports Center, the indoor home of the Islanders.

With poor weather expected, the match was moved from the island to Falmouth, and the Skippers took it from there.

"We were lucky we didn't have to make the boat trip," Cohasset coach Ann Thomae said. "But that is where Martha's Vineyard plays when they have poor weather."

Once the team hit the courts, the No. 3 seeded Skippers (18-2) made things happen.

Miles Morin started things off with a 6-3, 6-4 victory at No. 1 singles.

"He lost a few games in a row in the second set," Thomae said. "I think he wanted to win four in a row. Their No. 1 player was good, but Miles was in control."

In similar fashion, Doug Fitzgerald won 6-3, 7-5.

"It was similar to Miles," Thomae said. "He had a couple of chances to finish in the second set that he missed, but he pulled it out. Their No. 2 was really strong."

Cohasset's only loss was by

Skippers' Maher digs shot put pit at Alumni Field

By William Wassersug

Community Service classes are a standard for seniors in high school, and occasionally, a student can find a project that they have a personal affinity for.

Cohasset's Steven Maher found that project when he was asked to build a shot put pit for the Cohasset High School track.

Maher took on the challenge, and while he won't personally get to use it, the senior captain knows he has friends and teammates who will.

"Mr. Ford (Cohasset Athletic Director Ron Ford) asked me to work on the shot put area," Maher said. "He

Seniors leave huge mark

Nine seniors key to team's fortunes

The Cohasset Mariner

The 2014 Cohasset Varsity Baseball team headed into the MIAA Division 4 South Sectionals over the past couple of weeks, led by a special group of nine seniors that man eight of the nine starting positions on the diamond.

Brett Dooley, the squad's catcher as a junior, is the only non-senior starter. The senior group is a close knit group of players that have authored some special baseball memories on the diamonds of Cohasset and the South Shore.

Most of them played together on Cohasset's Williamsport team in 2008, and made a strong run to the District's final four. That same summer, as 12 year olds, the team battled to the

The First and Second grade little laxers continued their quest for their first undefeated season as they battled Norwell last Sunday in their first and last game of the season. Sam Pitts, who dropped a 1-6, 1-6 decision.

"Last year as a freshman he wasn't in the starting lineup," Thomae said of Pitts.

Both of Cohasset's doubles teams were victorious.

"Eric Weinstein and Dan Surkovic were 6-4, 6-2 winners, while Nathan Bumstead and Jackson Dutton won 7-6, 6-3.

"They pretty much took care of business," Thomae said of Weinstein and Surkovic. "They were the first ones off the court. They had it in hand."

Thomae said the win was a big one.

"We have three seniors in the starting lineup," she said. "We thought we had a good team last year, and this feels like the culmination of what we've worked toward all season from when we started back in March."

Thomae said the team is not satisfied yet.

"This feels fantastic," she said. "We have to try and stay in the zone and not get ahead of ourselves. We have an indoor practice tomorrow (Thursday). We'll keep working and take it one match at a time."

The Skippers will face either No. 1 Westport (16-1) or No. 5 Pope John Paul (18-3) in the Sectional Final probably at a neutral site.

On the girls side, Cohasset was knocked out of the tournament with a 4-1 loss to Ursuline on Wednesday.

Emma Davis won 6-0, 6-1 for Cohasset's points.

Final of the District 8 Summer League, before losing a heartbreaking game to champion Braintree National on a walk off home run in the last inning.

As 13 and 14 year olds, the boys keyed strong summer Junior League teams, and several played together on an AAU team that competed in South Carolina, Delaware and Connecticut. Most now play for the Post 118 Legion as well.

This season, the nine seniors led the Skippers into the State Playoffs as a hot squad, as they closed the season with seven wins in their last nine games.

The solid play at the end of the season propelled the Skippers to a No. 12 seed and a home game in the 22-team field.

In the tourney, the Skippers impressed, winning their opener 12-5 over No. 21 Bristol-Plymouth in the preliminary round before they were edged 3-2 by an outstanding No. 5 seeded Archbishop Williams team that was still in action in the Sectional semifinal, on Saturday at Braintree High School.

The Senior Nine included Colin Gideon-Murphy, Mickey Barry, Tommy O'Brien, Brendan O'Connell, Chris Haggerty, Terrence Doonan, Tim Cavanaro, Ryan McKeon and Liam Burke.

Each have been critical to the team's success this year. Murphy has had a terrific year at the plate, as he led the Skippers with a .394 batting average, and led the team in hits and RBIs, while providing exceptional defense at the second base position.

Mickey Barry has played both third and first, and provides power to the line up, as he led the Skippers in doubles. Barry's bat has really come alive in the second half of the season, and his timely hitting was a key factor in the team's late season surge.

Tommy O'Brien is second on the team in batting average at .359, and has played a strong right field all year. O'Brien also fills the closer role for the Skippers, as he has closed out several wins for the Skippers with his live fastball.

Brendan O'Connell was the team's pitching ace this year, leading the team in innings pitched and strikeouts, with an outstanding performance against then undefeated and first place Abington in Cohasset's season-turning 2-1 eight-inning win in early May.

O'Connell has played every position but catcher for the Skippers, and tied for the team lead in triples. Chris Haggerty has been outstanding in left field for the Skippers all year and contributed to the offense with timely hitting, particularly in Cohasset's grudge match win at Scituate.

Terrence Doonan has played a strong shortstop for the Skippers all year, leads the team in runs scored, and is tied for the team lead in triples.

Doonan also has contributed on the hill, with the highlight being a complete game gem in the Skippers win at Monomoy. Tim Cavanaro has been outstanding at first base for the Skippers, as his long reach and soft hands have snared all manner of throws. Cavanaro sported a .984 fielding percentage, while leading the team in total chances. At the plate, Cavanaro has been a consistent hitter, and been a key to a potent offense attack. Ryan McKeon has been a huge addition to the team this year, as he returned from a one year hiatus to be a key contributor on the hill, and sports a won-loss record of 4-0.

Liam Burke has played a stellar centerfield all year, as his speed and ability to read the ball off the bat has allowed him to make several big running catches for the Skippers.

The Senior Nine are multi-sport athletes, and have left their mark on Cohasset's sports over the past several years. Barry, Doonan, Burke and Haggerty were members of Cohasset's State Finalist football team, for which Barry and Haggerty were co-captains. McKeon and O'Connell were co-captains of Cohasset's State Finalist soccer team this past fall. Cavanaro was a member of Cohasset's golf team and Doonan and Barry were co-captains of Cohasset's hockey team. O'Brien is a talented hockey player who hopes to play in college.

With the opening tourney win, the Skippers next travelled to Apponequet to take on the No. 1 seeded Lakers in the South Sectional Semifinals. Cohasset fell behind 2-0 before exploding for three quick goals to take a 3-2 lead. Ally Leahy assisted on the first two scores, feeding Kathryn Dunn for the first tally, and then firing one to Marina Longo on the second. The rest of the half was back and forth as the teams traded goals leading to a 6-6 tie at the break.

Apponequet notched the first two scores of the second half to make it 8-6 before Kyle Burke raced down the field and passed to Longo who flipped the ball to Leahy for a far corner rip.

The Lakers answered with two more goals to extend the lead to 10-7 before the Skippers made a furious push to tie the game.

Leahy snatched the ball off the next draw and found Longo behind the defense to close the gap to 10-8. On the Skippers next possession, Dunn drove to the cage and was fouled setting up a free position shot that she scorched just past the goalie's left hip to close the gap to one at 10-9.

Molly Fitzgerald then took the ball away from Laker star Lizzie Loranger to set up a final shot for Cohasset.

The Apponequet keeper denied the final bid and the Skippers would came up just short after a great battle.

Goalie Taylor Frederick finished an excellent season with a nine save performance and the team's record was 12-8, which is tied for the second most wins in program history.

had put in a concrete circle last year, but we were throwing in dirt. I think we ordered eight cubic yards of stone dust. There was a lot of digging and raking."

Maher said he'd never faced the type of work the pit entailed.

"I'd dome some yard work," he said. "But nothing like that. It was a lot of manual labor, a lot of time."

Maher said he started work in October and put in about six hours a week until it was done. He figured he worked on it for six-to-eight weeks.

As for the track team, this was a banner year for the team.

"We were 7-1," said Maher, who was a senior captain on the track team said. "It was the best we've done in recent memory. We had a lot of people qualify for States."

At States, the girls finished eighth, led by Alexa Perez and her second place finish in the long jump, and Maria Waters, who won the Div. 4 State Championship in the high jump with a 5-02 jump that matched her best jump of the season.

Both qualified to compete at this weekend's All-State Meet.

Maher, who also plays football (defensive end) and wrestles, also qualified for the Div. 4 State Meet with the 4x100 team.

Maher, and teammates Aaron Lanner, Vinny Smyth and Alex Murphy finished 13th in the event.

Molly McNamara finished sixth in the triple jump.

For the boys, Cole Morrison turned in the team's top performance with a fourth-place finish in the high jump at 5-10.

Maher just graduated, and doesn't plan on playing collegiate sports. His studies are a priority.

"I'll be working to make some money in the summer," he said. "Then I'm going to URI (University of Rhode Island) in the fall. I want to focus on my studies."

SOUTH SHORE COMMUNITY CENTER NURSERY SCHOOL

Two long-time teachers retiring

Last week the South Shore Community Center Nursery School said goodbye to two special teachers. Weezie Welz and Marianne Smith retired after many happy years working with young children.

Mrs. Welz began at the Community Center in 1982 and has been leading the Pre-k program ever since. She is a passionate advocate for young children. "Play is children's work" will be the hallmark of her legacy at the nursery school. Her tireless enthusiasm and support of students, their families and the nursery school are incredible. Mrs. Welz is an outstanding teacher, mentor and friend. Staff and families are so grateful for her time at the Community Center.

Mrs. Smith began at the Community Center in 1976-1982, left the school through 1991 and has been there since. She has worked in the Nursery, Pre-K and Enrichment programs. Mrs. Smith has the ability to individualize learning for each student in her class. Her belief that every child can succeed is demonstrated in her curriculum daily. "A good start is essential to learning" is a quote Mrs. Smith has had posted in her room for years. Thank you, Mrs. Smith for so many "good starts".

SSCC NS Teachers Past & Present Attend Retirement Party: Katy Gratta, Laurie Greenip, Suzanne Jackisch, Deb Kuppens, Jen Lord, Jamey Kupsc, Ann Madden. Marianne Smith, Weezie Welz, Deb Thomas, Betsy Good, Anne Gallagher, Gail Whitehouse, Katy Falaro.

Mrs. Welz and Mrs. Smith have devoted their life's work to young children and their families. To honor them the South Shore Community Center Nursery School ran a clothing drive for Cradles to Crayons on May 27th and 28th. Cradles to Crayons is a wonderful local organization that helps families with young children in Massachusetts.

CONGRATULATIONS!

Jack Buckley honored as Citizen of the Year

Jack Buckley is this year's Cohasset Mariner Citizen of the Year for his commitment and untiring dedication to the Center for Student Coastal Research (CSCR) that has made a difference in the lives of so many local students and to the environmental health of the community.

The Mariner announced the award in March and a special reception in Buckley's honor was held Sunday (June 1) at Atlantica.

CSCR

Don't miss wetlands talk

Summer program registration June 17

Family registration for spring and summer student research at CSCR will continue from 5:30 to 6:30 p.m., on Tuesday, June 17, at CSCR, 40 Parker Ave. A presentation by Jason Burtner on the Restoration of Coastal Wetlands on the South Shore will follow at 7 p.m.

Burtner is the South Shore Regional Coordinator for the Massachusetts Office of Coastal Zone Management, a division of the Commonwealth's Executive Office of Energy and Environmental Affairs. He has been with CZM for the past 15 years and is well known to many throughout the South Shore for his work with communities, nonprofits and local stewardship associations. Burtner is often the glue that holds together a variety of state and federal agencies, municipalities, and non-government organizations to collaborate on coastal issues ranging from water quality and habitat restoration to harbor planning and storm damage resiliency.

Many readers know (or, aren't surprised to read) that over the past several centuries nearly one third of Massachusetts' wetlands have been destroyed or degraded. Conversion of wetlands for agriculture has resulted in significant and direct loss of wetlands. In urban and developed coastal areas, filling of salt marshes and tidal flats has added to these direct losses of critical habitat. Construction of transportation infrastructure, such as roadways and rail, have further altered and fragmented these interconnected ecosystems. These cumulative losses and impairments are significant as many of these wetlands provide ecosystem services such as storm damage and flood control values and are also vital breeding, nursery and forage areas for numerous commercially and recreationally important fish species. In Massachusetts there has been a concerted effort on local, state and federal levels to restore these areas.

Burtner's presentation will provide an overview of the history of wetland loss on the South Shore, but will focus on a number of local examples of how these areas are being returned to their previous vitality. CSCR is proud to provide the community with an opportunity to hear directly from Burtner about local wetland restoration projects. Those interested in Straits Pond, Jacob's Meadow, the Parker Ave. Cut, Broad Cove (Hingham), or any other fragile ecosystem on the South Shore, don't miss this lecture.

Hot dogs

Hot dogs will be grilled up before the lecture, so come enjoy a little summer cookout, register to join one of CSCR's research adventures, and stick around to learn about wetland ecosystems in Cohasset and neighboring towns.

A family membership fee of $275 entitles all students in a family to participate in all of CSCR's research and education programs for an entire year. Adults without student researchers in their households are also urged to become members of CSCR and are welcome to participate in CSCR's research programs, work alongside students, and share their enthusiasm for learning, their professional expertise and their wisdom.

Spring and summer 2014 research projects include the following: Junior Marsh Monitors (an introduction to coastal monitoring); Gulf River Water Quality (a advanced bio-chemistry project); Drifters (building and tracking surface current drifters in support of NOAA oceanography research); Rain Gardens (a town-driven initiative to map, assess, and refurbish rain gardens in Cohasset); Phag Mapping (mapping the invasive phragmites that dominate our coastal marshes);Eelgrass (a study of the invasive sponges –tunicates – strangling our eel grass beds in the Bassings Flats); Python Programming (a computer course in learning Python programming skills); Beaches and Bacteria (monitoring enterococcus levels at Cohasset's beaches); Tidal Power Research (a student-led and student initiated feasibility study of harnessing energy from the tidal power of the Gulf River); Irish Mossing (a hands-on, "is-this-possible" first-for-us combo rowing and science marriage investigating chondrus crispus).

Online

Registration and more information about research programs are also available online at http://ccscr.org/. For more information about these projects or CSCR's Junior Marsh Monitor program, email Jack Buckley at jbuckley@ccscr.org.

Burtner attended Boston University where he received bachelor degrees in environmental science and biology with a specialization in marine science. While at BU he participated in the Boston University Marine Program and spent a semester of concentrated study at the Marine Biological Laboratory in Woods Hole. Jason received his master's degree from Tufts University's Department of Urban and Environmental Policy and Planning. He is a great friend to CSCR has supported scores of CSCR students throughout his tenure at CZM.

Traffic Safety Tip of the Week:

Never put your feet or legs against the dashboard or out the window. In a crash, the passenger-side air bag will deploy from the dashboard at 200 mph, resulting in serious injuries to legs or feet. Typically, the injuries include broken bones. With the warmer weather police see more passengers riding this way. In addition, this activity blocks the driver's view of the passenger-side mirror, creating a blind spot. COURTESY PHOTO

Register of Deeds hosts Cohasset office hours

It is O'Donnell's goal to provide a convenient way for residents to learn more about how the Registry serves Norfolk County while conducting Registry business closer to home.

Norfolk County Register of Deeds William P. O'Donnell will host office hours at Cohasset Town Hall in the basement meeting room, from 10 a.m. to noon, on Thursday, June 26.

O'Donnell and members of his staff will be on hand to answer questions about the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds. The Register will have information about the Massachusetts Homestead Act as well as on-site workstations that can provide in real time the status of a mortgage discharge, a print out of a deed or a demonstration of how Registry technology works. No appointment is necessary.

It is O'Donnell's goal to provide a convenient way for residents to learn more about how the Registry serves Norfolk County while conducting Registry business closer to home. Although Registry staff cannot provide legal advice, they will be able to answer basic questions, provide general information, take a document for recording and assist in filling out Homestead Declaration Forms.

Abbot O'Connor — a 'life of prayer'

By Carol Britton Meyer
cmeyer@wickedlocal.com

As the third Abbot of Glastonbury Abbey, Father Thomas O'Connor is its spiritual leader, enjoying nothing better than listening to the bells chime — a call to prayer several times a day that he says "centers" him.

"That's what we're all about — a life of prayer," he said, in keeping with the Benedictine motto, "prayer and work." "The Abbey is an oasis for so many people. It's always been a holy place for me."

He especially enjoys seeing adults who come back to the area after moving away visit the Abbey after having attended services there as children "and were nourished here."

He can't think of a better place to perform his priestly duties than at the Abbey, located on 63 acres of well-groomed and beautifully planted grounds in peaceful co-existence with nature.

In June 2013, the monastic chapter (fully professed monks) at Glastonbury Abbey elected Fr. Thomas as Glastonbury's third Abbot after serving in this prayer-based community for more than four decades in many capacities, from sacristan — caretaker of the church — leader of prayer services, director of the Abbey Conference Center, and everything in-between. A formal ritual known as "The Blessing of an Abbot" was presided over by Cardinal Sean O'Malley, Archbishop of Boston, last August.

As Abbot, Fr. Thomas is considered the shepherd of the monastic community. "The Abbot sets the tone for the Abbey and the extended community, seeking answers to the question, 'Where do we go from here?'" He also has an active role in the spiritual formation of the monks.

Fr. Thomas said while a monk could be defined as a person who "chooses to lead a life of solitary seeking of God, in our case we are in the midst of a monastic community that is supportive of one another — moving in the direction God is calling us toward — being what God wants us to be."

A comment from a visiting Abbot struck a cord with Fr. Thomas — "The role of an Abbot is to love the brothers [fellow monks]."

'A man for this time'

Fr. Thomas attributes growing up in Holyoke, Mass. as one of five children, with the cultivation of a sense of flexibility that helped him adapt easily to the community living lifestyle at Glastonbury.

One of the questions in his mind looking toward the future is, "Will we still be here in 25 years? The pool of [men seeking this kind of lifestyle] is getting much smaller than it used to be," Fr. Thomas said. Still, he remains optimistic.

One of his most meaningful activities is leading prayer services for the community. "I couldn't do this alone," he said. "It requires the help of God and my brothers here in the Glastonbury community."

Another is saying a Friday evening prayer mass for inmates at the Bridgewater Correctional Facility. "I love doing that," Fr. Thomas said. "Those who come to the chapel for the service are so filled with God's spirit and love. They see God as active in their lives."

Cohasset resident Harry St. Onge, heade of the Finance Council and Glastonbury Abbey Institute Committee, also high praises for Fr. Thomas and the other monks. "There's a great feeling to the place," he said. "It's part of the Benedictine way to accept all people — no questions asked — no matter where you've been or are coming from. It's wonderful being around others who share those same feelings and a sense of community."

Other members of the Glastonbury community, with a wide range of talents, include Brother Daniel, who runs the Abbey Conference Center and is a spiritual director and Abbey member of the Hingham-Hull Religious Leaders Association; Father Timothy, a writer, theologian, spiritual director, and pilgrimage leader; Father Nicholas, the director of retreats and Formation and Oblate Director and overseer of property and building maintenance; and Father Gerald, who helps in the business office and is in charge of automobile maintenance and does priestly ministry.

There's also Brother David, monastery choirmaster and organist who does secretarial work in the business office; Brother James, Abbey Conference Center staff member, works on the grounds, and prepares Sunday coffee for guests; Father Andrew, moderator of the lay liturgical committee, master of ceremonies for liturgical events, and scripture course teacher at the Abbey Institute; Brother Albrecht, a monk in temporary vows, still in formation, serving on the vocation committee; and Father Justin, formerly abbot of St. Paul's Abbey in New Jersey who performs priestly duties at Glastonbury and is an accomplished artist.

In the Abbey's pastoral setting, some of the monks garden and tend to the goats. The chef makes cheese from the goats' milk.

"It's like a family here," Fr. Thomas said. "We have good times as well as difficult times when we have to deal with various issues that aren't always easy. We're a community that listens to God and to each other – a place for men who desire to seek God together."

The monks share meals and attend services with each other. They also work on various projects in addition to having their own interests and activities, including watching TV or going to a movie.

Amid the day-to-day lifestyle of a monk, prayer plays an important role. "Liturgy [public worship] is very important to the Benedictine monks because it speaks to the people about God's love for them and how to celebrate that as a community," Fr. Thomas said.

OBITUARIES

Obituaries appearing in this section are paid for and written by families, often through the services of a funeral director.

Marjorie Steele

COHASSET – Marjorie "Margie" (Felton) Steele passed away May 26, 2014, at the age of 58, at her home of 27 years in Cohasset.

Marjorie Steele

Loved by her family and friends for her remarkably kind, generous spirit and genuine love for others, Margie's death is regarded as a blessing, releasing her from an 8-year struggle with younger-onset Alzheimer's disease - one that her family could not help and she could not win.

Her lengthy battle with the disease was unique because she lived peacefully throughout, in the home she loved, with support from family, caregivers, and community - a network known as "Team Margie".

Margie was born May 4, 1956, in Boston, the middle child of George and Marjorie Felton, longtime residents of Hingham.

She grew up in Hingham, where she attended Derby Academy and went on to graduate from Chatham Hall, an all-girls boarding school in Chatham, Va.

She attended Skidmore College, later transferred to Babson College, and graduated with a major in Marketing in 1978. While at Babson she met the love of her life, Matt Steele. She married Matt in June 1981 at her family's home in Hingham, and so they began their 32-year journey together.

Margie's family and extended family were the center of her universe. A devoted wife and mother, she created warm and welcoming homes in Cohasset and Sugar Hill, N.H., the latter a stone farmhouse in the White Mountains where she loved relaxing with family and friends and enjoying the beauty and serenity of the North Country.

Known as "Gigi" to her sisters, nieces and nephews, she was happy and funny and full of life and laugher, a gift she freely shared with many.

Beautiful, vibrant, and gracious Margie possessed a relaxed, friendly manner and a warm, compassionate smile that put others immediately at ease.

Helping other people came naturally to her, and she co-founded and operated the Cohasset Food Pantry for many years until the disease diminished her ability to work.

In recognition of her selflessness and generosity, Margie was recognized by her community as Cohasset's 2006 "Citizen of the Year."

She was also deaconess at the Second Congregational Church of Cohasset, trustee at Derby Academy and served on the Board of the Cohasset Social Service League (as well as many other community services). She was a member of Cohasset Golf Club and Cohasset Yacht Club.

Margie's beautiful life journey can be summed up in a Buddha saying, "In the end, only three things matter: how much you loved, how gently you lived, and how gracefully you let go of things not meant for you."

Those left devastated by what the disease took away, besides her husband, include her three children, Caroline B. Steele (husband James Duggan), Samuel F. Steele (girlfriend Jenna Van Etten), and Grace T. Steele (fiance Brady Hoover); her two sisters, Alice F. Horner (partner George Randall) of Hingham and Nancy F. Hughes (husband Clifford) of Manchester; 13 nieces and nephews; her mother-in-law, Jane Steele-Corriveau of Cohasset; and her best friend, Elizabeth Chapin of Geneva SUI, all who dearly loved her; and many precious friends who kept contact until the very end.

There are no calling hours. A memorial service to celebrate her life will be held Saturday, June 14, at 10:30 a.m. at St. Anthony Parish in Cohasset. A reception will follow at the Atlantica Restaurant, Border Street, Cohasset, from 12-2 p.m.

In lieu of flowers, her family requests that memorial donations be made to the Margie Steele Foundation (www.margiesteele.org), which was established by her family in her honor to fund younger-onset Alzheimer's disease research.

SALOME'S STARS FOR RELEASE WEEK OF JUNE 16, 2014

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Things that usually come easily and quickly for the Aries Lamb might need more of your time and attention during the next several days. Try to be patient as you work things out.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) A changing situation can create some complications. But if you apply that sensible Bovine mind to what seems to be a hopeless tangle of confusion, you'll soon sort things out.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Creating a new look for your surroundings is fun. Expect to hear mostly positive comments on your efforts, as well as some well-intended suggestions you might want to note.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Maybe you'd rather do anything else than what you're "stuck with" right now. But if you stop complaining, you might see how this could lead to something with real potential.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Even a proud Leo ultimately recovers from hurt feelings. However, a damaged relationship might never heal unless you're willing to spend more time and effort trying to work things out.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) There are lots of changes on the horizon, so be prepared to make some adjustments in your usually fine-tuned life. One change might even impact a personal decision you've been putting off.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Being the dependable person you are could work in your favor for a project that requires both skill and accountability. But check this out carefully. There could be a hidden downside.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) A temperamental outburst about a mishandled project causes some fallout. Be sure to couple an apology with an explanation. A new opportunity beckons by week's end.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Changing horses midstream is usually unwise but sometimes necessary. Examine your options carefully before making a decision. A trusted colleague offers good advice.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) While much of your time is involved with business matters, fun-time opportunities open up by week's end. Enjoy yourself, but be careful that you don't overspend.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A "revelation" opens your eyes to what is really going on in the workplace. What you learn could make a difference in your career path. Continue to be alert for more news.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Not wanting to make waves might be the safest way to deal with a difficult situation. But no substantive changes can be made unless you share your assessments with others.

(c) 2014 King Features Synd., Inc.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have a way of talking to people that makes them want to listen. You could find a successful career in politics.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles?

Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Level: Challenging

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!
